New Football Coach Will Direct "T"

Athletic Director Maury McMains announced this week the addition of Otis Douglas to the coaching staff of Drexel Institute of Technology. Mr. Douglas is well known as a tackle on the Philadelphia Eagles football team. He is an expert on the T-formation, and will aid in the installation of that system here.

Otis Douglas started to gather his football experience in 1928 when he played four years at William and Mary College. After graduation, he joined the coaching staff of his Alma Mater and in the next seven years rose to the position of Head Coach. From 1939 through 1942 he was Head Coach and Director of Athletics at the University of Akron in Ohio. Answering his country's call in 1942, he accepted a commission as a physical training officer in the Navy, also playing on and coaching the Navy football team at Jacksonville, Florida. After his discharge from the service in 1946, he was signed by the Philadelphia Eagles, with whom he is still playing as tackle.

Drexel has never been a power in local football circles, but the past two-and-one-half years have been exceptionally disheartening. The Drexel Dragons have dropped their last fourteen contests. Their last victory was in October, 1946, when they defeated Haverford.

Mr. McMains attributes this poor showing to many factors. Drexel was set two years behind other schools when former DIT athletes did not return to Drexel after the war, since they finished their courses in the service. Very few resumed their studies here.

Another difficulty is that most of the Drexel players are only 17 or 18 years of age, compared with 21 or 22 in other schools. In addition, all of the teams on Drexel's schedule are considerably stronger than last year, according to Mr. McMains.

Most of the new men had used the T-formation in High School and asked that it be used at Drexel. Since Coaches Chase and McMains feature the single wing and punt formation, it was decided to bring in an expert on the T-formation to augment the present staff.

Realizing that Drexel's athletic program was severely handicapped by the lack of suitable material, the faculty voted a limited number of freshman scholarships this year. Final approval was granted late in the spring

"Footballers" dance to Bob Fredericks' music

The Third Annual Theta Chi Foot Ball Dance held last Saturday night, October 9th, was a smooth climax to the successful publicity campaign carried on by the Fraternity throughout the preceding week. Drexel students who frequented the Court every day last week at 1 p.m. were made aware of the coming dance by the bombing trips of the big Red Airplane. Ping pong balls and chewing gum were among the items dropped to advertise the affair. Gaily-colored paper footballs were strung across the Court and a large stuffed uniformed football player kept the Foot Ball theme in the minds of the students all week. Although the "Andrews Sisters" of the Theta Chi Fraternity didn't sing Saturday night with the band, they were very favorably received in the Great Court last Thursday. The Theta Chi "all girl" chorus line should be receiving bids for a new Broadway show very soon, judging from the talent it uncovered so recently.

The theme was well worked out, for at the dance a large football field was marked out in the Court with line markers and white paper streamers strung from the second floor balcony. The entrance to the dance floor was made through red and white colored crepe paper creating a stadium entrance. A large goal post was

Lecturer Joins Drexel Faculty

Besse Howard, radio commentator and lecturer, has recently been added to Drexel's Department of History. Miss Howard will lecture in Contemporary History.

Prior to coming to Drexel, Miss Howard, who is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College and the University of Pennsylvania, spent six months in Europe as foreign correspondent for radio station WCAU. In her official capacity she visited England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, and other countries. From 1944 to 1947 she was a commentator on WCAU, broadcasting daily on the "World Panorama" program.

Miss Howard also represented Station KYW as a commentator and political analyst during the years just before the war. Her "Youth and the World" program was heard weekly, and eventually every school and college in the area had been represented on the program.

Besides studying at Randolph-Macon and Penn, Miss Howard also studied at the University of Grenoble, and at the Sorbonne. After her studies, she trained for the Foreign Service, and was Director of the American Committee in Geneva.

Miss Howard has had several articles published, among them "A French Estimate of Emerson," and "Geneva Turns the Clock Back—to the Future." The latter appeared in the Christian Science Monitor, issue of December 20, 1947.

Students May Hear "Infantry Chorus"

Tuesday evening, October 26, is a great night in Philadelphia's music circles for "the de Paux Infantry Chorus returns." Last year their program was so sensational that it thrilled Philadelphians. This year it is bound to be as great a success because of the program chosen. The program will be divided into five sections, namely: Songs by Contemporary Composers, Folk Songs from Latin America, Songs from World War II, Negro Spirituals and Work Songs, and Songs of Faith. The outstanding selections in these groups are "Roger Young," "Listen to the Lamb" and "Great Gaud A'Mighty."

Many of the veterans have probably heard this group before. It was organized at Fort Dix in 1942 by Captain Leonard de Paux and is composed of 35 Negroes of the 372nd Infantry as a volunteer, off-duty activity.

It was deemed a morale unit to entertain other troops. No island was too small, no outpost too remote for the singing infantrymen. Sometimes they gave eight shows a day, in hospital wards, on the decks of battleships, on hidden bomber bases, and at supply depots which were often overlooked by other entertainment units. It was the Armed Forces' enthusiasm that inspired the singers' decision to stay together as a concert group after the war.

The La Scala Opera Company will present Rigoletto, with the leading stars as follows: Hilda Riggione as Rigoletto's daughter, Brun Landi as the Duke and Cesare Bardelli in the title role.

Also presented will be Il Trovatore with the celebrated Mezzo-Soprano Ebe Stignani in the leading role. You will be able to obtain tickets and additional information on the above in the Dean of Women's office.

JUNIORS! You have a date for Friday, October 22. Just show your class dues card at the Lodge door and join in the fun. For on that evening the combined Pre-Junior and Junior Classes will hold an informal class party, starting at 8:30. We'll see you there!

Drexel Award Presented to du Pont & Co.

The 1948 Drexel Award, established in 1947 and presented then for the first time, was awarded at a dinner Wednesday, October 13, at the Hotel Barclay to the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company. C. H. Greenwalt, du Pont president, accepted the award for the company.

The Award, represented by the silver Founder's Medal of Drexel Institute of Technology, is presented to a corporation, association, or business organization which has been outstanding in its field in the past year and which has made exceptional contributions to the industrial, technical, economic or social life of the industrial area of which Philadelphia is the center. In 1947 the Award was made to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, then celebrating its hundredth anniversary. M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, accepted the award in behalf of the railroad.

The Founder's Medal was designed by Gilroy Roberts, Philadelphia sculptor and medallic artist, now Chief Engraver at the Philadelphia Mint.

Rouge and Robe Plans Two One-Act Plays

The first fall meeting of the theatrical Rouge and Robe Club was called to order last Tuesday, October 5, at 7:30 P.M. in the school auditorium by its president, Pat Floyd.

The first business item on the club's agenda was the discussion of the production of two one-act plays for the experience of its club members and the entertainment of Drexel students. The first, called "Thank You, Doctor," by Gilbert Avery, is a melodramatic farce which will provide laughter and suspense for all.

The comedy is now in rehearsal under the direction of its co-directors, Stanley Esbenschade and Hal Meade. Its cast includes three boys and two girls; Dr. Gurney, Henri Ewald; a patient, Jack Ruth; Cort, Norm Smith; Nurse Gray, Theresa Fourario; and Mrs. Lester, Jeanette Cheuvreau. The play takes place in the reception room of Gurney's office.

The second play, entitled "Merton of the Movies," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, will be presented as a one-act play adaptation from a three-act play. Ronny Silverman is the director. Its cast consists of five men and six women.

The two plays will be held sometime in the near future in the afternoon so that all Drexel students may enjoy them free of charge.

The big three-act production will be presented in the spring term, but as yet not much work has been done toward this end.

The theatrical club, in addition to putting on plays, will give entertain-

Saturday, October 16th, is Homecoming Day. The undergraduates of Drexel extend a sincere and hearty welcome to all Alumni as they return to the surroundings of their pre-graduate days.

Homecoming Day serves a major purpose in that it reminds all graduates that they are still an important part of Drexel, and that continued interest and activity is needed to continually raise the prestige of the various Colleges within Drexel.

The item of prime interest to all is the program of the day, and this

Griffin Elected Drexel Trustee

Frank H. Griffin, Vice President of the American Viscose Corporation, internationally known in the field of chemistry and chemical engineering, has been elected a member of the Board of Trustees of Drexel Institute of Technology, according to an announcement yesterday (Sept. 25), by A. J. Drexel Paul, Chairman of the Board.

After three years' study, Mr. Griffin was awarded a certificate in Chemistry from Drexel Institute in 1906. He was granted the Bachelor of Science degree from Swarthmore College in 1910 and the Master of Science degree in Chemistry from Columbia University in 1916. Mr. Griffin served as a member of the Drexel Institute chemistry faculty from 1909 to 1915, and as a member of the faculty of Hahnemann Medical College and Friends Central School in 1917 and 1918.

With the American Viscose Corporation since 1918, Mr. Griffin has distinguished himself by his work in the chemistry of synthetic fibres. As a result of his contribution in the development of the stretch spinning process of producing high tenacity rayon filaments, the modern rayon industry received an impetus which has enabled it to develop an ever increasing production, this year exceeding one billion pounds. Mr. Griffin has been Vice President and Technical Director of American Viscose since 1936, having risen to this post through the successive positions of Assistant to the Chief Chemist, Chief Chemist, Director and Member of the Board, and General Plant Manager.

A native of Chester and active in community affairs, Mr. Griffin has continued his early interests in education. He is a member of the American Chemical Society and the Franklin Institute, and also a director of the Delaware County Chamber of Commerce and the Delaware County National Bank.

He was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering by Drexel Institute in December, 1947.

ment and instruction in the various duties and methods of play production at its weekly meetings starting this Tuesday night, October 19. All who are interested are urged to attend the meetings presented by outside specialists on the various forms of "play acting."

year it is filled with activity and interest. A splendid program has been prepared through the efforts of Mr. George Baker, Mr. Jack Caldwell, present President of the Alumni Association, and the Program Committee.

The big day will start at 2:00 p.m. when the Drexel Dragons will meet Haverford College at the Drexel Field, Forty-sixth Street above Market. There will be reserved seats for the Alumni, so start the day early, fill them up, and—"Let's go, Dragons!"

Following the game, there will be an informal "After the Game" Social Hour in the Persian Room of the Penn-Sheraton Hotel. Here all Alumni will have an excellent opportunity to meet acquaintances of past years and to spend an informal hour or two with old friends.

At 6:30 there will be an informal dinner in the Drexel Court. The toastmaster is to be Joseph Finnerty, a member of the class of '34.

Mr. Wallace Heaton is providing an excellent music program in the form of a quartet. The quartet will sing four numbers:

- Song of the Jolly Roger, by Candish Old Man Noah, by Bartholomew Until, by Sanderson, and March of the Musketeers, by Friml

Members of the quartet are Richard Nannum, Robert Fredricks, John Talbot, and David Brunner.

The speaker of the evening will be Mary I. Barber. Miss Barber will be introduced by Dean Chapman, Dean of the College of Home Economics.

Miss Barber is a graduate of Normal and Domestic Science from Drexel Institute and one of the College's outstanding and well known Alumni.

Miss Barber received her B.S. de-

Engineers Wanted-Civil Service

An examination for filling engineer positions at the P-1 grade ($2,974 a year) in Washington, D. C., and vicinity, has been announced by the U. S. Civil Service Commission.

No written test is required of competitors in the examination. To qualify, they must (a) have completed 4 years of college study in professional engineering leading to a bachelor's degree, (b) have had 4 years of progressive experience in technical engineering, or (c) have had any time-equivalent combination of such education and experience. Applications will be accepted from students who expect to complete their college courses within 6 months of the date of filing applications. Age limits, waived for persons entitled to veteran preference, are from 18 to 35 years.

Interested persons may obtain information and application forms at most first- and second-class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Applications should be sent to the Commission's Washington office; they will be accepted until further notice.

CHESTERFIELD

A Student's Epistle

Dear Mom:

Thanks a million for the eggs you sent me in the laundry kit, but you know what, Mom? You said in your letter that you were sending me hard boiled eggs. What happened? Did you make a mistake? Gosh, it's uncomfortable as I don't know what, trying to sleep now. Did you have to wrap the eggs in my pajamas?

My roommate once told me that college is a case of give and take—you give money and take examinations. Ain't that the truth! You should see how fast they cover stuff in class. The other day I went to my math class and before I had a chance to get organized and blow my nose, I missed four chapters and a twenty minute quiz.

Wait 'til I tell you, Mom. I made a stupid mistake last Saturday, but as it turned out it was really a stroke of good luck. I went out to the field to watch our football team (to use the words loosely) in action, and when I got there I found out that they were playing some place else that day. But instead of a football game, I saw a bunch of guys running around like mad and kicking a ball back and forth. I didn't know what they were doing but I knew they weren't playing football, however, after watching the game for a while I couldn't help but think that it was more of a football game than football itself. There were a couple of dozen other people there—they must have made the same mistake I did—who I thought might know what was going on, until I got a better gander and saw the look of horrified amazement on their faces. Somehow, though, it finally got around that the game was called soccer, and boy, what a game. As I said before, I didn't know much about what they were doing, but I do know that Drexel—Drexel's where I'm going to school, Mom—won the game 4-0. And there's a lot more to be said for this game, too. For one thing, when a team scores (I don't quite know how you score in this game as yet) you only get one point, so even if you lose the score doesn't sound so bad. And if there's anything I hate it's big numbers—you know, like 45.

Remember my telling you about that cute little nifty I met last week? Well, I took her to a dance last night—she picked up a couple tickets somewhere—and did I have myself a time! I went to her home to call for her, just like you taught me, and on the way to the dance I asked her if she knew the difference between a taxi and a subway. When she answered, "No," I said, "Fine, we'll take the subway." Gosh, you should have seen the look she gave me.

She was wearing something in black with no shoulder straps and throughout the whole evening I kept trying to find out what kept the darn thing up. Well, Mom, whatever it was sure did a good job because I'm still wondering. Anyway, while we were dancing, I made like I've really been around some and cuddled real close to her and whispered in her shell-like ear, "Gee, honey, I'd like to dance like this forever." She looked at me kinda funny and said, "Don't you ever want to improve?" I wonder what she meant by that.

Well, I've got to close now. It's getting pretty late and I've still got my last week's assignments to catch up on. Say "hello" to Pop and Sis and tell Sis to be careful when she goes out with that new boy she met. I saw him and he looks like the kind of a guy who has the same thoughts in his mind that I have when I go out with a girl.

Your ever loving son,

CHESTERFIELD

P.S. How about sending me some money—quick.

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, October 18, 19, and 20, the Annual Herald Tribune will meet in New York at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. Attending one of these sessions will be the president of the Men's Student Council, James Crouse, and Betty Beagle, president of the Women's Student Government Association. Dean Young will also attend the forum. The topic of discussion will be "The Conservation of Human and National Resources." . . . Julia Chen of Shanghai, China; Olga Kennedy of St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada; Sarar Daga of Ankara, Turkey; and Jose D'e Aguiar of Buenos Aires, Argentina; have been invited by President and Mrs. Robert L. Drexel Women's Club Plans Annual Tea

The Drexel Women's Club will begin their activities for the school year with their annual tea for new members on Wednesday afternoon (Oct. 20) in the Women's Dorm from 3:00 to 4:30.

Mrs. E. Lee Goldsborough and Mrs. Walter Henneberg are co-chairmen for the opening social event of the Women's Club. On the committee with Mrs. Goldsborough and Mrs. Henneberg are: Mrs. Bachman, Miss Hons, Miss Hack, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Lange, Mrs. Grosvenor, Mrs. McMullan, Mrs. Nutting, Mrs. Ulrich, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Riddle, Mrs. Ridpath, and Miss Ruff.

The receiving line at the tea will include: Mrs. James Creese; Mrs. Tavenner, president of the Women's Club; Mrs. Hanson, vice-president; Miss Poole, recording secretary; Miss Rankin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Giles, treasurer.

lenic advisor. The House is now known as the Marjorie Sims Pan-Hellenic House. Miss Sims gave freely of her time, effort, and money in helping the girls achieve their goal; and, although Miss Sims can never be repaid for all she has done, the girls have deemed her the honor of dedicating the House to her. This Saturday the Marjorie Sims Pan-Hellenic House will be open for guests—everyone is cordially invited. . . . The night of the Varsity Club's "Kick-Off" Dance was also the occasion of the Varsity Club drawing. Mrs. Fred W. Jordan, wife of an ex-Drexel tackle, owes much to our President Creese, who drew her lucky number. The award was first prize of two seasonal tickets to the Philadelphia Eagles' football games.

You're Invited !!

Maybe you've heard about it, maybe you've seen it, maybe you've even thought of going inside. But you probably had no invitation. Well, here it is—just what you've been waiting for:

The Student Building Committee

Cordially Invites

YOU

To use and enjoy

The Student Building

The committee in charge of the building, piloted by Ted Day, is flying high with ideas for improvements, and new attractions—all for you!

Among the latest additions is the new Philco television set. Its presence represents not only the generosity of the Philco Corporation, but also the cooperation of Mr. Myers and Mr. Toombs with the committee, in securing for the social center those attractions which will make your visits more enjoyable.

Various renovations are still in the making, such as the opening of Snack Bar in the basement for evening students and the innovation of a music room on the second floor.

The Snack Bar was set up for a two-week trial period, but due to the light patronage of the students in the evening, its continued existence is in doubt. The first trial week was only fair, and it is hoped that business will pick up enough so as to warrant its continuance for everyone's benefit. Work on the music room is well under way, and it will be in use by the end of this month. It is being painted in tones of green and has built-in wall cabinets to house the records.

The sub-chairman of the Student Building committee, Irwin Briethaupt, is taking care of investigating prices of records and machines. He is assisted by Ed Miller, member of the music fraternity, Pi Nu Epsilon, who has contacted various radio stations to obtain comparatively new records. Miller has already accumulated about fifty records from WFIL and expects some from WCAU, KYW and WIP in the near future.

The room is expected to accommodate about five people, who may listen to the collection of popular records as well as a few classical and semi-classical selections. The music department will also utilize the space to further their musical knowledge.

Briethaupt is trying to secure a conventional recording machine in addition to the latest record player, which will play 45-minute records. The members of the committee will take care of the indexing and filing of the records.

A big feature in store is the brand new radio program soon to be heard exclusively within the Student Building. About this you will hear a great deal more in the ensuing weeks, so keep your ears open.

As you pass through the doors to the hub of student activities at Drexel, remember that there is a group of students and faculty constantly striv-

The "Inside" on Used Car Buying

Have you or any of your friends ever been "stuck" when you tried to buy an automobile? Though most people are experts in their own fields, they have the disadvantage of being Amateurs when they go out to buy a used car. For this reason, many people look at used cars as bets on which they are liable to lose a great deal of money. Therefore, it is with joy that the general public greets the first volume published on the subject of getting a good value when a used car is bought.

"How to Be an Expert Car Buyer" was written by W. D. K. Cummings, who was graduated from Drexel as a Mechanical Engineer in the class of June '41. Mr. Cummings is now a member of the Engineers Club of Philadelphia and head of Cummings Enterprises. His book is divided into three main subjects; tricks used to fool unsuspecting buyers, defects which can be detected, and how to figure and pay the right price.

Among the tricks used by unscrupulous dealers are "palming off" "taxi," "railroading," the financing and insuring, slipping in extras, and turning back mileage. After reading about these and many more, you will be able to watch out for them.

There are three chapters devoted to mechanical defects which can easily be detected. So that you will have some idea of the value, list prices for new cars of all makes are included. Other items show how to figure the amount you can afford to pay for a car and several ways to finance your purchase.

"How to Be an Expert Car Buyer" covers everything a person should know before venturing into the world of the "Smiling Irishman" and the "Happy Hungarian." It is brief and to the point and contains no terms that the average person cannot understand. You may save money if you read it before you buy.

ing to make the Student Building a place in which you will want to spend more time. Their only reward is your constant use of the facilities they have made possible for your benefit.

She: "Not tonight . . . I'm too tired. How about running out of gas here in town?"

All Hail

WE, THE future alumni of Drexel, salute those who are Coming Home tomorrow.

Some of us will be at our own first Alumni Homecoming, one short year from now. How we will feel as alumni we must yet discover, but we expect to react something like this:

Drexel will be our Alma Mater, and it will be up to us to see that she stands up to the alma maters of those with whom we will rub elbows in the work-a-day world. To this end, it will be to our own advantage, as well as our duty to those who follow, to do all in our power to advance Drexel in the ways in which we feel a college should go.

As a class, we will stick together and, wherever we are, we will join the Drexel Club of the community. In these and other ways we will avail ourselves of the opportunities to meet again on common ground, to re-create these golden days, and to render an accounting of our stewardship of the higher education which is ours. Until those days arrive—

Here's to the Alumni!

Rags, Bones . . .

LAST Friday you may have picked up your copy of the TRIANGLE from the usual table just off the Great Court, or from tables in the Men's Lounge, the Student Building, or the Friends School Annex. If you were one of the first 1500 to get a paper, you also picked up your copy folded.

Our circulation staff began this practice to give you better service and to avoid the confusions that have occurred in the past. In order that they may continue to do this better job for you we must have your cooperation. After you have read your copy and wish to discard it, do so by placing it in a WASTE RECEPTACLE. Don't toss it on the Court steps, the hall floors, or the closest vacant chair!

Home Ec. Assoc. Drive is Success

After a successful membership campaign, the Home Economics Association initiated 165 members at a candlelight ceremony in the Picture Gallery last Thursday. The ceremony was conducted by the president, Elinor Campbell, assisted by other board members. The initiation reminded members of their aims and responsibilities.

Following the initiation ceremony, there was a most interesting talk on dolls by Mrs. Wilson, a Drexel graduate. Her collection included examples of dolls from early times up to the present, and contains some rare pieces.

Tau Beta Pi Plans Slide-Rule Course

The Zeta Chapter at Drexel of Tau Beta Pi, the Honorary Society for engineers, is investigating the possibilities of establishing a course of study in the use of the slide rule. It will exist primarily to help beginning engineers, but will be open to anyone interested. There will be no tuition charge and the instructors will be junior and senior engineers. In order to determine whether or not there will be sufficient demand for such a course, all those who are interested are requested to drop a card in the box of William R. Mitchell.

INTER-FRATERNITY NEWS

Homecoming, Oct. 16 Brown Jug to be Given

The second annual Homecoming Week-end will take place this year on October 16. On this date the entire school will coordinate all of its activities to honor our esteemed alumni. So far the following program has been outlined for the occasion. In the afternoon, all will gather at Drexel Field to cheer Drexel on to victory over their opponents, Haverford College. After the game, the Alumni will adjourn to The Persian Room of the Penn-Sheraton Hotel for an informal cocktail hour. Then, since after such an invigorating afternoon appetites should be greatly stimulated, everyone will gather at the Great Court at 6:30 to enjoy a delicious dinner catered by Degenhardt.

One of the feature attractions of Homecoming Week-end is the Open House sponsored by all Drexel fraternities. All Drexel Alumni and Undergraduates and their friends are cordially invited to attend this most enjoyable event. Last year's open house was one of the outstanding social accomplishments of the season. This year, with addition of the new Pan-Hel House for guests to visit, it should also be another signal success.

In conjunction with the open house, another highlight of the evening will be the competition between fraternities for the "Little Brown Jug." The "Jug" is awarded each year to the fraternity that presents a display that most nearly symbolize the activities of the week-end.

The idea of the "Little Brown Jug" was originated by Theta Chi Fraternity to be an annual tradition among the fraternities. Last year, Theta Chi presented the jug-winning display on the front of their house. It consisted of a huge inebriated character that symbolized our honored alumni. There was a sign placed above the figure which read, "Welcome Grads."

The displays this year promise to be even more interesting and picturesque than those of before. Competition between the fraternities is very keen. The decorations will be of the nature of Homecoming Days of Home Football Games, which students of Penn and other colleges are so accustomed to seeing outside their fraternity houses. These displays are being formulated to regenerate the feeling of a Campus atmosphere here at Drexel. Because our fraternity houses are away from the main school buildings, we sometimes lose sight of the fact that we do have a campus which is in the vicinity of the Girls' Dorm.

Judging will take place between 8:00 and 9:00 p.m. on Friday evening, October 15th. This time has been arranged in order that the judges may appreciate fully the lighting effects of the displays. The judges this year will be Dr. Creese, Dr. Stratton, and Mr. George Baker of the Drexel Alumni office. The judging will be based upon appropriateness, cleverness and presentation. The winner of the Little Brown Jug will be announced between halves of the Drexel-Haverford game on Saturday.

Rushing Low Down

Some guy once said that all work and no play makes Joe College a square wheel or words to that effect. To make the well-rounded man who is so desired, we have for your inspection seven social or Greek-letter fraternities here at Drexel.

Probably some of you are wondering why you haven't been button-holed by some hot Frater trying to sign you up for his house.

Well, fellows, it wouldn't be fair either to you or us to use such tactics. We don't know you, and you don't know us. For this reason among others, the Inter-Fraternity Council has imposed a few simple rules for "rushing."

The rushing season is the first two weeks of the winter term. A freshman must have passed 75% of his courses and is a duly registered student at Drexel. There are other rules, but none quite so pertinent as these. Don't worry, fellow, we'll get around to you.

I-F Football And Bowling In Full Swing

With the beginning of the fall term two major interfraternity sports programs will get underway. The interfraternity football schedule began on October 4, and will close on November 29. The bowling season began on October 7 and will close on December 1.

Team captains have been supplied with schedules and rules concerning game procedures.

The schedules are as follows:

Football

Alpha Pi 12, Teke 0
Pi Kap 32, Lambda Chi 0
Theta Chi 0, S.A.M. 0

Oct. 11 and Nov. 8

Pi Kap 8, Alpha Pi 6
S.A.M. 12, Teke 12
Theta Chi vs. Lambda Chi

Oct. 18 and Nov. 15

Teke vs. Pi Kap
Theta Chi vs. Alpha Pi
Lambda Chi vs. S.A.M.

Oct. 25 and Nov. 22

Who Will Be I.F. Queen?

Saturday, November 13, is the date of the biggest event of the fall term, the Inter-Fraternity Ball, to be held this year at the Broadwood Hotel.

One of the highlights of the evening will be the coronation of the sixth annual I-F Queen. It is customary for the queen to be presented with a gift from the Inter-Fraternity Council at the night of the Ball. Helen Lawrence, last year's queen, will be present to bestow the crown on this year's lucky candidate.

As customary in the past, the queen will be chosen from a group of six candidates who are nominated by the six fraternities on campus. Pictures of the nominees will appear in the Court at least one week before the dance. All persons who purchase a ticket will have the privilege of casting a vote for their favorite candidate and the final returns will be announced at the dance.

A study of the past candidates for the honored position of Sweetheart of the Inter-Fraternity Ball has shown that not only are Drexel men capable of recognizing beauty but also personality, for these girls are usually the most active and popular around school. Helen Lawrence, last year's queen, has been secretary of her freshman class, a member of the Deltas, the TRIANGLE staff, and the Pan-Hellenic Council. She was also a star performer on last year's junior varsity hockey team.

Welcome Freshmen

The Inter-fraternity Council, on behalf of the member fraternities of Drexel Institute of Technology, wishes to take this opportunity to welcome the Freshman Class of 1949.

Because of the limited campus at Drexel, and limited facilities for recreation after the regular school hours, the fraternities at our school provide an excellent and, for the most part, the only means for the "student away from home" to participate in a wholesome and enjoyable form of life.

The non-existence of an organized intramural athletic program, other than the Interfraternity Athletic program, makes this latter organization a must for all of you who enjoy and depend on the relaxation that is found only on the athletic field.

It will be through the fraternities and the medium of their various social functions that you will be able to meet people and make new friends, other than those with whom you associate in the classroom day after day. The social aspect is not the only way in which the fraternity can aid you, by any means. The fraternity stands ready to help those who inevitably develop troubles in the pursuit of their educational goal.

Beyond any doubt, a large number of your class will eventually become members of one of the fraternities for which we speak. We urge you, then, to grasp every opportunity to familiarize yourselves with fraternity life and activities at Drexel. Open house socials are held frequently by all fraternities, and the freshmen especially are urged to join in the merriment. Fall "Homecoming Day" offers an excellent opportunity for you to see what we are doing. Drop around and see our homecoming displays. Let's get acquainted.

DREXEL Thru the Week

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

On Friday, October 8, TKE held their acceptance Dinner for the newly accepted pledges:

Jack Partridge
Nick Howley
Miles Etter
Ed White
Frank Reese
Bill Ewen

Congratulations and the best of luck to all six of you.

We got rolled in our first football game with Apple Pie, 12-0. The boys played a good game but not quite good enough. In bowling we evened the score by beating Apple Pie 4-0.

Tonight we are hosting at a marching and chowder session for the Tri Sigs. See ya's there, Ladies.

PI KAPPA PHI

Now that the fall term is going strong, the Pi Kaps are getting into the swing of things. The last two Saturday nights found most of the brothers enjoying two swell dances given by the Varsity Club and Theta Chi. Thanks a lot, fellows.

Around the house, the topic of conversation and work is our show, "Greene Countrie Towne" and the beautifying of the exterior of the house. Green paint really wears well, doesn't it, painters?

In sports, the football team got off to a good start and will be trying to improve their record against the "Apple Pi's." No word from the bowling team yet, but they will be in there pitching.

That's all for now, but keep the Pi Kap show in mind as it promises to be a gala affair.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

We're happy to be off the "casualty" list and back in the news once more. A hearty welcome to all the new freshmen. It's nice to have you at Drexel.

Plans for the new season are rapidly forging ahead, and it looks as if we'll have plenty of opportunity for get-togethers and good times.

Tonight's the night for the purple sweater party to be held at the TKE house for all actives and pledges. Our brothers are expecting us at 8:00 p.m. decked out in purple in some form or another. We're all mighty anxious for some more of that TKE hospitality.

Don't forget to stop at the Pan-Hel house tomorrow night. In celebration of Homecoming Day the girls at the house will be hostesses after the football game until 12:30 p.m. Actives, here's your chance to get together with alumnae and patronesses.

We're happy to welcome Joy Saalfrank, who recently joined the ranks. She's a transfer from Wilson College at Chambersburg where she was an active Tri Sig. Congratulations to DREXEL on Page 8

I-F Ball to be Held at Broadwood, Nov. 13

On Saturday, November 13, 1948, the Interfraternity Council will present the highlight of the fall term social calendar, the Interfraternity Ball. The I-F Ball has become a tradition wherever Greek social fraternities exist. On practically all campuses it occupies a prominent position. However, Drexel's version of the Ball is not intended for Greeks alone but rather as an all-school affair. All students and their friends are welcome to attend. Newcomers to Drexel will find it a fine opportunity to see how a big college formal operates. For the upperclassmen the thrill of the occasions of previous years will be cause enough to return.

Purpose of I-F Council

The Inter-Fraternity Council provides unity of purpose in fields where joint fraternity action is necessary. Its principles are simple yet workable. Imbued with the idea that fraternities can build college leadership and spirit, the I-F Council has always tried to keep the fraternity movement alive. Interfraternity competition helps to build stronger fraternities, which are the basis of any joint action. Social activities can also accomplish this purpose. Other functions of the I-F Council are regulatory, particularly as regards to new membership. The council is used as a forum for discussion of problems of fraternity operation. Each member chapter can, through its two representatives, present ideas to the council for further discussion and action by the rest of the chapters.

Since tradition governs much of the program, there will be the usual formal dress, name-band music, and selection of the Interfraternity Sweetheart. It is impossible to disclose the name of the orchestra at this time, but it will follow such names as Elliot Lawrence, Art Mooney, Charley Barnett, and Claude Thornhill. To insure sufficient room for good dancing, the I-F Council has again signed the ballroom of the Broadwood Hotel.

An event which is looked forward to by all fraternity men is the election of the Interfraternity Sweetheart. The fraternities each nominate one candidate to be voted on by ticket holders. The winner will be presented at the Ball.

More details concerning the I-F Ball will be released later in the month. The committee in charge feels confident that this year's edition of the I-F Ball will leave pleasant memories with all who attend.

DISCUSSIONS

by TED DAY

That liltin' Martha of the Tilton clan has just enhanced the value of the Capitol stock by releasing her latest platter including that old favorite "I'll Remember April," and a new one on a novelty kick, "I Like It Better All the Time." One band wasn't enough for this Capitol chick, so Gordon Jenkins plays the back-up for the "April" side while Dean Elliott does the reverse grooving.

Stan Kenton gives the country a break once again through the medium of Capitol records, when he records another tune with June Christy doing the vocal chores, as only she can do them. June is heard on the "A" side of the label singing "Don't Want That Man Around," another great progressive jazz offering, while on the flip-over, Stanley drives his mad mob through "Harlem Holiday," a danceable ditty featuring the semi-great tenor wax of June Christy's hubby Bob Cooper and the not so great trumpet of Chico Alvarez who was the only drag on the famous Kenton ork when it appeared here for concerts and night club shots.

The Columbia Wax factory has just released "Frankie's" recording of "Autumn in New York," mated with the old romantic story of "Once Upon a Moonlight Night." As usual Mr. Stordahl (Alex) does the background honors, and does his usual terrific (hey Leo) job. Sinatra knows a good deal when he sees one and while the competition is so keen Frank makes sure Alex is always there to rest on.

As long as we're on this Capitol kick, I see where the west coast producers of great wax are now releasing their lists of Xmas tunes. Heading the list as usual is Nat "King" Cole and his wonderful, and that adjective is definitely inadequate, recording of "The Christmas Song," but this year the reverse offering is "Laguna Mood," instead of "In the Cool of Evening." This year Capitol has their own Andy Russell do "Silent Night" and "The First Noel" with the Weston baton leading the way.

Even Julia Lee and her Boy Friends are getting into the Xmas Act, with her Capitol recording of "Xmas Spirits," which is a "bluish" type of tune about everyone has a man but Julia and she's all knocked out with the blues. On the next grooving you'll hear some remarkable brush work by Baby Lovett as Julia and Co. play "Charmaine."

Columbia grabbed Harry James to do a couple of tunes just for kicks and came out with "What Did I Do," and "Ah, But It Happens." Marion Morgan asks the leading question on the first side of this labeling, from the pix "When My Baby Smiles at Me," Vinnie de Campo chirps the romantic whispers on the reverse accompanied by a string choir and the ever present James solo.

Another Columbia first—Woodrow Herman of herd fame doing a great riff interpretation of "Four Brothers," which features a great sax section riff building up to a sensational Herman finish. The plattermate being "No Time" vocal by the Woodrow himself. This record is in the usual Herman greatness but nothing to compare with "My Pal Gonzales," and Mary Ann McCall's "P.S. I Love You."

That is all for today, but here's a prediction—this writer can see in the near future a new Art Shaw band with Georgie Auld leading the sax section and Buddy Rich pounding out the rhythm.

Satisfied Jones and The Case of the Sophisticated Sleuth

by JOE GILLES

This is Satisfied Jones, a detective that will set your wits on end and force you to sit up straight in your chair. Jones, hereinafter known as Satisfied, is not a very big man. In fact if the truth were known, people might call him Shortie Jones. He is that kind of man. When you first enter his office you are struck by his little pot tummy protruding over the top of his small feet, which in the proper relation of things detective are set firmly on the top of a bare desk. Sitting on a very convenient table nearby are a bottle of Scotch and a secretary.

As I entered the office, Satisfied was just reaching toward the table. I deduced that he wished a drink. I was not wrong. He shoved the bottle toward his mouth and stopped drinking long enough to greet me—he then continued about his business.

He motioned me over to the table that was just big enough for two and was at present occupied by his secretary and one empty bottle. He continued his work. I watched. Here at last I was able to see the greatest detective in the world at work. I was fascinated by his cool steady hand as it gripped the bottle. I was fascinated by his cold impersonal voice as he dictated The Case of the Sophisticated Sleuth. I was fascinated by his secretary as she took down that horrid story. What a man! What a story! What a secretary!

As I heard the story from the lips of the man who was the most feared person in the underworld, I must admit that it was most fascinating. It all started this way—

It was a dark night and the fog hung damp and heavy over the metropolitan section of the city. The streets were deserted except for one person. This person I learned later was the most important person in the story—the body to-be. He was a man in his early fifties. He wore a top hat at a jaunty angle on his dome-like head. His great coat was perfectly tailored about his ample body. He carried an umbrella. (It was an inclement night.) The street lights showed like dim balls of white cotton and often shroud like fog drifted across them.

The next morning they found his body. It was crumpled in the alley-way against a tall undignified building. The face was livid. His eyes protruded from their sockets. It was clearly a case of murder.

The police had already been on the scene for several minutes when Satisfied Jones arrived. He hobbled his little pot tummy among the officers, looking for Inspector Quiver. He found the good Inspector leaning over the body. "Nice morning ain't it 'spector?" The Inspector turned toward Satisfied, striking his head against the soft cushion of the little man's stomach. "Go to—Oh! It's you, Satisfied. What are you doing in this section of the woods?" Satisfied chose to ignore this remark principally because his breath had not returned from the violent buffeting his tummy had received.

The Inspector arose. He stood a good three feet taller and two feet narrower than Satisfied. He did not wait for an answer to his last question. He only pointed to the body. "See that welt around his neck." "Strangled he was," Satisfied did not need to bend over to see the band of blue on the body. Indeed he couldn't. He is that kind of man.

As the Inspector turned toward one of his men for a moment, Satisfied stepped back a few inches so that he might view the body without the mound of flesh about his waist obscuring his vision. Satisfied suddenly reached up and tugged the Inspector's trousers. "This man is Sylvan Slouch, better known as the Sophisticated Sleuth. Furthermore Sylvan Slouch was not the victim of unfair play. Stop your investigation. It is all a horrible mistake."

The good man turned toward Shortie (better known as Satisfied). "Sakes alive! What do you mean?" said the Inspector.

"This body belongs to Sylvan Slouch and as such during its period of occupancy was Sylvan's to do with as he wanted," said Satisfied. "Sylvan was always a most neat dresser. In fact he would never think of loosening his tie or unbuttoning his collar at any time. Last night was very damp and what with one thing and another Sylvan's collar was buttoned. The damp weather caused his collar to shrink and Sylvan, rather than be undignified, strangled." With these words Satisfied turned on his heel, brushed several police officers with his tummy, and waddled away. It was just like Satisfied to do that. He was that kind of man.

Drexletarians Plan Annual Square Dance Twelve Initiated By Eta Kappa Nu

The Drexletarian Society will open its fall social season with their annual dance in honor of the many freshman members. The dance will be held in the Student Building on Friday, October 15, 1948 at 8:30 P.M.

Dr. Robert S. Hanson, of the Chemical Engineering Department, will be the square dance caller. Professional square dance instructions for all beginners will be given by capable instructors, thereby enabling everyone to participate in the fun. Bob Newhouser will supply his outstanding volume of modern square dance recordings to complete the musical program.

The dance is informal, and plaid shirts and dungarees should be the typical apparel of the evening. Cider and doughnuts will be served during the intermission.

Admission will be by membership card only. All Drexletarians and their guests are cordially invited.

The first monthly dinner meeting of the society will be held next Thursday, October 21, 1948 at 5:30 P.M. in the Christian Association Building of the University of Pennsylvania, 3601 Locust Street.

The program will include speakers

Six juniors and six seniors were formally initiated into Eta Kappa Nu, National Electrical Engineering Honorary Fraternity, last Friday, October 8. The initiation ceremony was held in a third floor classroom at 6 p.m. Here the symbolic badge and colors of the fraternity were pinned on each new member.

The serious business of initiation was followed by a banquet at Shoyer's restaurant, at Fifth and Arch Streets in Philadelphia. Good humor was the keynote of the banquet, with speeches by Professors Lange, Powell and Zern of the Electrical Engineering Department, in that order. President Bob Ashford acted as master of ceremonies.

from Philadelphia's famous Fellowship House. The subject of the talks will be racial and religious tolerance, one of the principal platforms of the Fellowship House.

Murmurs of a Those before us Barbarian

by BOB BROUGHTON

Sometimes it becomes very difficult to write four hundred words which are fit to print every week. It is hard to write of the things that seem to need writing about and not antagonize those whom it is forbidden to speak out against.

Enough of this stuff. Those of you who remember what it used to be like should give three hearty cheers for the new set-up of the bookstore. It is certainly one of the most practical improvements that could have been made and it is the most direct benefit that the students could have received. We should have some more of this type of thing.

By this time, it is becoming difficult to distinguish freshmen from upperclassmen, particularly the engineers. They certainly get that cynical look quickly after being exposed to three weeks of algebra.

From the September 27th issue of Newsweek, an article by Dr. Archibald MacIntosh, vice president of Haverford College, states that fifty per cent of the students entering college this fall will not graduate. This seems to be an extremely high rate, and the principal reason for dropping out is academic failure. Why is this? Is it exclusively the fault of the student? Is it that there is something wrong with the process by which the college selects those who will enter? Is it the fault of the high schools for not properly training their graduates? Is it possibly the fault of the college and its instructors who might have gotten the idea that a certain percentage must be failed? Why is it that two different instructors will be teaching the same course and one of them will pass all but two or three of his section and the other will flunk all but two or three? The answer, I suspect, lies with all the factors combined and not on any one. At any rate, the result is a tremendous waste.

When Jack Alfred Caldwell left Drexel he was President of the Class of '22, Chairman of ASME, Chairman of Student Council, and a member of Kappa Sigma Delta, now Pi Kappa Phi.

Now the holder of several patents on instruments and control devices, Mr. Caldwell has worked with General Chemical Co., Electric Power Equipment Corporation, Ryan, Scully and Co., Philadelphia Electric, and Brown Instrument Co. During his fourteen years with Brown Instrument he has been in charge of mechanical design and development, and is now Manager of Industrial Engineering.

Representing Drexel in 1932 as a mechanical expert on the State Board for Approval of Voting Machines, Mr. Caldwell was the only non-faculty member among representatives from Penn. Lehigh, Carnegie and State.

talk to students on the subject he knows best. He was elected to the Board of Directors of Drexel Institute Alumni Association in 1947. His brother, James Warren Caldwell, was an E.E. of the Class of '28.

The 1922 Lexerd says of him: "Jack is a quiet fellow, but he puts everything across in a fine way. He always finishes what he starts out to do, and he starts out to do a great number of things.

"As President of the Class in its Senior year, he piloted it through that trying time in good shape. In fact, the fine spirit which he has always shown will certainly help him to reach great heights in the engineering world when he leaves Drexel. Whatever he does when that time comes, the best wishes of his classmates will always go with him."

When the Alumni of all classes gather tomorrow night for their 1948 Homecoming Dinner in the Great Court, the man who will greet them as their President is Jack Caldwell.

Fate's Rhapsody

by RON SILVERMAN

The piano sounds different under my fingers tonight. Sort of far away and unreal. But I expect something strange tonight.

First some of the simple arpeggios I learned in those days of my youth. I studied so hard. My mother struggled to give me those lessons but I never really appreciated it. My head was filled with the wonders that Maestro Broido, my teacher, promised me as a great artist, and not of the surroundings of even my own home.

It was just after I composed my first piece, this one I'm playing now that I awoke. With my mother's passing away I found the financial trouble she was in. The insurance just about covered her debts and the small genius was on his own.

Oh, what despair I felt then. Tchaikowsky's Pathetique could have sounded as lost. Yet, I had to go on. Friends got me a bank teller's job which gave me plenty of time to continue my music.

And now, to the strains of the love song I wrote, I remember Elise. For her I could compose all the symphonies in the world. I could make the purple haze of mountains at dusk, or the deepening shadows of a green valley come to life in music. For her I could catch the grace of an acrobat or the majestic poise of a stallion on a mountain cliff. Yes, for her I could live, and write and be great.

And she was mine. When I played I held her heart completely. For the first few months it was wonderful. Life took on new meaning and my work really began. I started a symphony and it flowed out of my love for her.

But fate is not that kind. Elise was knowing her financial difficulties too, and I didn't have the money to help her.

I guess I would do it over again, if I could relive those days. It wasn't hard. A hundred dollars here, fifty there. Most of the time I could sell small pieces to publishing houses and replace it but as time wore on, she wanted more and more.

When I was alone, the helpless despair crept into my soul and my music. But when I was in her arms, autumn was there, filled with the colors of the trees and the caresses of the same breezes swept Indian lovers many moons ago. The star, the moon, the mystic night had their enchantment still. I could write and live and forget the harshness of the world. Yes, I would do it again.

Yesterday, when the bank examiner arrived, I knew what I must do. Last night with my music, I wrote for the future that holds no place for me. And now this morning, by the piano that has comforted and helped me these years, I am ready.

I shall play the melody with one hand and drink my special mixture with the other. The last of my best scotch, soda and ice, and something new and spicy. Yes, here the end shall come. I drink. How bitter it tastes. Well, let it symbolize my last mood.

The phone! Oh, can't they leave me alone now? No—wait, I'll answer that stupid bank and laugh in their faces. They with their exactness and money. No feelings, no moods, no inspiration or music. It is they that should perish and not me.

"Hello? New York? Yes this is he."

"This is the office of the New York Symphony. We've seen your music and it's great. You'll be a rich and a famous man. When can you come to New York and discuss plans with us for the future?"

"Plans for the future?" Yes, here is my chance to laugh and let him hear the torment of my body.

"My friend—didn't you know—that a—man isn't great until— he's dead?"

"Hello, hello. Are you all right? Hello (click, click) operator, operator. I've been cut off—."

BARGAIN DAY

By CAROLE HITCHNER

What women won't do to save a nickel! They all complain about the long dresses and invading new styles (never hesitate to buy them) direct from that faraway city known as Paris. (Paris my foot! That last style was created after Mrs. Jones remodeled her husband's long underwear.) Ah! yes, how you love to go shopping when bargains are prevalent, despite the competition you have with all others of the female sex.

That new skirt you saw advertised in yesterday's paper is on sale. You pick up your coat, run down the steps, throw your books in your locker, and dash toward the subway. Oh, you forgot your purse?—You rush back to school, run up the stairs, open your locker and grab your purse and once again proceed toward your destination.

Finally, after a short interval on said subway, you find yourself being politely (that was her story) shoved from counter to counter in a mad, desperate search for that skirt. "Pardon me." "That's all right, Miss. I walk on 'em too." "Miss" nonchalantly ignores your statement, so you, in turn, ignore her. (What a waste of time.)

It's like plowing through a herd of wild hoars trying to find that bargain. (Now remember your blood pressure!) Finally, after attempting several times to get one small peek at them, you make a successful attempt at grabbing one. Just your size—14—and fits perfectly. "Miss," who proves lots more likeable than the former one, neatly wraps up skirt and graciously you hand her dear Mother's charge plate. (How can Mother be so foolish as to trust you with that?)

Time is scarce, so you plan your attempted getaway out of the store. Bending over slightly so that your head is pointed directly forward, you begin struggling toward the subway

SHERMAN WAS RIGHT

By MILDRED D'ALIO

With the "Spirit of '76" we neared the Lehigh stands—two minutes after the kickoff. Shouts rose from beyond the great walls and our hearts beat so loud Dezi Arnez had nothing on us. Could be Drexel made a touchdown? We tore our way through what seemed like bargain day in Snellenburg's basement. Then we sat down to "rest in pieces!" With that cocker spaniel expression we looked at the score. So Lehigh was ahead—so what!

The game went on with what seemed like a desperate fight for Lehigh (oh yeah!). Anyway, to the tune of our opponents' Alma Mater we sang our dear old Drexel song—"Down between two old warehouses."

As we sat between our Lehigh dates—spitting chewed-off fingernails for confetti—the Lehigh cannon boomed one touchdown after another (hasn't anyone told those poor saps we aren't fighting the civil war any more?). What still confuses me is why that damn cannon pointed to the Drexel stands. What did they want—blood?

The Dragons fought on—but did they have to be so nice to Lehigh? After all, even if that pigskin did belong to them, did we have to give it to them all the time? Oh well, we just showed our Drexel sociability.

The fourth quarter was over. Score? 45-0. As the Lehigh fans crawled over our backs and walked down the other side, we managed to gather enough strength to leave peacefully—on all fours.

entrance. Now, really, that was no time to make like a Doc Blanchard!

Next day you dash to school, run up the steps, open your locker, get out your books, and rush to class. You receive all kinds of comments on your new creation.

Open House & Dance Greet "Dorm Patrol"

The annual Freshman Dance sponsored by the Social Committee of the Dormitory, turned out to be successful. This year an Open House was held in conjunction with the dance honoring all freshman women in the dormitory.

Every light from the infirmary to the basement was burning. All the rooms fairly sparkled. Desk tops, dressers, beds, chairs and corners were cleared for all "junk"—every room held an air of femininity.

Those on each floor did their level best in dressing up their bulletin boards and making their floor attractive. The bulletin board on tenth floor, for example, all done in pink ribbons and lace, displayed an attractive little lady dressed in a black gown with pink tulle and holding myriads of pink ribbons to which were attached cards with the names of the girls on the floor. The little lady made from black construction paper, gold lace doilies and pink tulle was named "Tamber."

Sleepy sixth floor used sky blue and white puffy clouds in decorating their bulletin board. Little white lambs, on which were printed the names of the girls on the floor, were scampering about on the clouds. Sleepy sixth was spelled with cotton.

Seventh heaven, the little angels, used pink, blue and white on carrying out their theme. A large angel dominated this bulletin board and the names of the girls on the floor were printed on pastel colored stars which were found on the bulletin board as well as at the doorway of each room.

Fourth floor carried out the autumn theme, using gaily colored leaves on which were printed the names of the girls.

Thirsty third used "The Bottle" as their theme.

Ninth floor sported a little brown bear, sitting before a sign post, and trying desperately to decide into whose room he should go.

Open house was an open house in the truest sense of the word. The girls supplied cokes, ginger ale, cookies, pretzels, candy, etc. Everyone seemed to walk out of one room and into another and just helped themselves—invite or none.

Do you know about nylon's other lives?

Here's a surprise for those who think of nylon mainly in terms of stockings and lingerie.

Nowadays, nylon fibers—twice as strong and half as heavy as the same size aluminum wire—are doing a variety of jobs, better than any previously known fiber. Off Labrador, men are harpooning whales with nylon lines. In a New England textile mill, abrasion-resistant nylon ropes now drive big "mule spinners" for periods ten times as long as other commercial materials, without a breakdown. Nylon fabrics are being used in everything from rugged automobile seat covers to delicately woven filter cloths.

In its plastic form, nylon is used to make everything from unbreakable dishes to hypodermic needles. As a monofilament, it goes into a variety of products from brush bristles to surgical sutures.

Nylon cords give giant truck and airplane tires the strength and elasticity to absorb tremendous impact shock without bruising.

Water won't hurt the nylon strings of this racquet. They resist breakage over an extended period of time. No tiny strands to fray.

Nylon football uniforms, as worn by Bobby Jack Stuart, Army back, are not only tough wearing, but much lighter and quicker drying.

Nylon owes its origin to a Du Pont fundamental research project begun in 1928. A group of scientists set out to find out how and why the molecules of certain substances polymerized to form giant chainlike molecules. Hope of obtaining a new commercial fiber was first aroused when, two years later, a polymer was developed which could be drawn out into a thin strand, like taffy candy. The complex problems which followed called for the services of over 200 Du Pont men and women, among whom were some of America's most competent scientists and engineers.

Research—a Major Du Pont Activity

Nylon is an excellent example of modern research at work at Du Pont. Young scientists joining the organization now may share in other discoveries of outstanding importance. They may find opportunities in such challenging fields as finishes, coated fabrics and various fibers; synthetic organic chemicals, including fine chemicals; synthetic rubber; electro and agricultural chemicals; plastics; pigments and photographic film; and high pressure synthesis.

Each of ten manufacturing departments of Du Pont has its own staff and is operated much like a separate company. Within each, research men work in groups small enough to bring quick recognition of individual talent and capabilities.

Year after year, young, inquiring minds come from leading U.S. schools of science and engineering to Du Pont—where individual ambition is matched with opportunity, cooperation and the type of friendly support that brings out the best in each person.

Dragonettes Start Season

Play Temple Owlets Today

On Wednesday, October 13, Drexel traveled to Beaver College for a practice game. Four fifteen-minute periods were played in which substitutes were allowed to re-enter. The final score was Beaver 9, Drexel 1. The lone Drexel goal was made on a clear shot by Nancy Shutts, hard-hitting right inner. The defense played very well and displayed excellent clearing shots on Beaver attacks on the goal. Lois Farrow, goalie, prevented many goals from being made by the aggressive Beaver team. Line passing was fast and the Drexel lassies showed plenty of fight.

Miss Darrah and Miss Forstner are well pleased with the enthusiasm and fight which has been shown by the team so far.

The line-up and substitutes for the Beaver game were:

Zoom-m! The Hockeyettes are practicing again. Thirty-five women reported for practice last week at the 16th St. field. Today will be the first home game of the season when the Dragonettes meet Temple at 3:30 p.m. The teams are working vigorously on stickwork and passing and are anticipating a victorious season.

The schedule is:

October
15—Temple, practice Home 3:30
20—Rosemont Home 3:30
25—Swarthmore Away 3:00
27—Bryn Mawr Away 4:00

November
1—Penn, practice Home 3:30
4—West Chester S.T.C.
9—Chestnut Hill Away 4:00
16—Immaculata Away 4:00

Come out and cheer for the team. The home games are scheduled at a convenient time for you to attend. Student cheering from the sidelines with plenty of fight and spirit will surely lead the team to victory.

Candidates for the team this year are: L. Archibold, S. Bacon, B. A. Beagle, S. Conrow, V. Dinon, E. Fulton, L. Farrow, J. Flint, C. Groves, P. Grundy, G. Hemphill, E. Haines, L. Hrat, A. Marsh, M. J-V Gridders Open October 23

The Jay-Vee football squad, under the able tutelage of Coach Herman Epstein, is eagerly awaiting the opening of its '48 season against Swarthmore next Saturday, October 23, at Drexel Field.

The squad was originally scheduled to open against P.M.C. last Wednesday; however, the game was cancelled because of too many injuries on the P.M.C. team.

Coach Epstein, who is also working as assistant coach on the varsity squad, is concentrating on having the boys physically fit and well-trained in the basic principles of good football.

The team, although small, numbers some very good prospects among its ranks. Several players who are now working out with the varsity squad will come over to the team after the start of the season.

The leading contenders for starting berths on the line are: John Standt, Elmer White, Henry Mulkiewicz, Wayne Ballard, Jr., Harry Foell, Dick Celly, Lean Fice, Bernard Hunt, Richard Yosko, and Carl Bouer.

The backfield will be handled by such men as: William Johnson, Jay Caesar, Earl Shisler, Meil Bryers, and Joe Volpe.

Yonkermen Win First League Tilt 4-0, by Downing Gettysburg

Haversick and Linde Star as They Each Boot Two

by STIER

Gettysburg's Bullets proved to be blanks as Drexel's Soccer team blitzed their way to victory, 4 to 0. The formula of Williams + Daga = 2 (Haversick + Linde) proved to be far superior to anything the Orange and Blue could produce. Co-Captains Haversick and Linde earned their respective awards by each scoring two goals to provide the margin of victory. This victory avenges a tie of last year which cost Drexel the District Championship.

The first period opened with Drexel pressing from the start. Through the clever foot work of Daga, Linde, and Kirschen plus the support of a hustling Blue and Gold backfield, the entire first period was dominated by the Yonkermen. Only the fine goal keeping by Gettysburg's Watkins staved off the Dragon's repeated scoring attempts. Midway in the period Daga made a precision-timed pass which Rapid Robert Linde converted into a quick goal. From this time until the end of the half, Drexel was unable to score despite the fine wing play of Daga, Williams, and Merrifield. On one occasion Merrifield blasted away at the goal only to be stopped by the goal post.

J-V Booters Ready for Action

All eyes are focused on Coach Al Laverson's JV soccer squad. Reason—next year over half of the "Nightfighters" move up to play varsity ball. Although the JV's dropped their initial encounter with Haverford 4-1, the squad should begin to shape up into an effective team before the season is completed.

Standout on the "Nightfighters" is Bob Jones, a freshman from Haverford High, who was named on the All-Suburban team last year. Working on the forward line with Jones are George Heimerman, former Girard College player, Bill Shone from Haverford High and Ralph Gassert hailing from Muhlenberg High. At the halfback posts are Walt Scott, who although new to the game this year should be Varsity material by next year, and Hans Peters who played for the Dragons last session. Holding down the fullback posts are two boys from league teams in Philadelphia, Charlie Roller, Olney High, and Earl Crompton of Lighthouse Boys' Club. Working the goal is Mort Shafter, West Philly High, who has been playing a bang-up game. Rounding out this combination are Frank Gasdner, John DeAquiari, Dick Goldberg and Bob Roper.

In the second half the Drexel defense and offense began to roll. The only thing which pierced Drexel defense was Coach Yonkers' dog "Chloe," which ran onto the field during the second half. In fact, goal tender Doc Savage read three chapters of "Marriage and the Family" during this period. Meanwhile, the forward line went wild. Haversick made a nice pass to Linde which was turned into a tally. Then Haversick, himself, ignited and scored two goals. One was a nice place next to the far corner, while the other was a runaway which George netted without much trouble.

This accounted for the scoring, but by no means was the entire picture. The forward line with Smith, Rohl, Merrifield, Kirschen, Linde, Haversick and Daga rained shots on the Gettysburg goal tender so much that he thought he was facing Picketts' charge.

The score indicates the effectiveness of the forward line. Brethwaite, Rodgers, Cox, and Kjerland played faultless ball in the halfback line. Fullbacks Wacker, Rodgers, and Eisenhart allowed no scores, so what more can you say about the defense Savage and Heinberger added up to no goals. Victory was sweet because this was the first league game. Today the team travels to Western Maryland to play its next league game.

KORNER KICK

by HONEST ED

A lie travels 'round the world while Truth is putting on her boots—

CENSORED—

Rumors are flying. There is a hot story brewing in the Athletic Department, but because things are so screwed up, I don't want to give all the contradictory things which I have heard. If the Athletic Department would get on the ball and release a true publishable statement, I think the students, faculty and Ieh would be extremely happy! It certainly would clear up a picture which is already too clouded with rumors.

ONE BEER—

This week's dime beer for outstanding service to the Athletes at Drexel goes to Doc Pennell. At EVERY Athletic event the Doc is present to aid the Drexel wounded, and every morning he is on hand to take care of the casualties from the previous day. This alone would win him the beer, but to top it off he is a staunch Drexel fan. Oh yes—the "Tree Surgeon" is a damn good Doctor too!

3800 ONIONS—

This week's onion goes to YOU, the readers. Don't be shocked. You deserve it. Answer this question, "Do you support Drexel teams?" And don't come back into the argument that the teams never win. The Soccer team wins, and you have given them as much support as a worn out brassiere. Win or lose you should back your athletes. They go to class with you, and then go out to practice while some of you sit around and gripe how lousy they are. Comes time for games and you go to Penn games and pan yourself off as a Penn student, because their team wins. Some of you are going to get sore because what I've written doesn't apply to you. To you people—I say, bring it to attention of those who it applies to. And to this group—onions!

NEW LOOK—

Soccer team's new Royal blue and gold uniforms. . . . Cheerleaders' new yaller sweaters with built in . . . pardon me fellows. . . . Horse Chase's size 42 football pants. . . . Marie; luscious, delectable, eatable dish on the field hockey team. . . . Drexel sign on the Field House. . . . Yo-Yo team's new non-breakable, nylon, sanforized strings. . . . Concerts to Open With New Pianists

On October 21, as the first in a series of five Thursday concerts, Pi Nu Epsilon will present a promising young pianist, Miss Charlotte Schreiber, sister of Alice Schreiber, a Drexel student, recently graduated from the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music.

These weekly Thursday concerts were well received last year by Drexel music lovers. This year, however, due to the many activities taking place at 1 o'clock, it has been decided to have only five concerts per term, which will be held in the auditorium as usual.

Pi Nu Epsilon, the honorary musical fraternity which sponsors these programs, has planned to include a vocalist, and several instrumentalists in the programs this term. All those interested in music are invited to attend this first recital on October 21, at 1 o'clock.

I.F. LEAGUE TIGHTENS

by B. A. LIVERS

Monday, October 11th, an overcast and foreboding day, threatened to rain at any moment, and scared off all I-F football games save that between the more waterproof Tekes and Sammies. In the early quarters the Sammies held the offensive, scoring the first twelve tallies of the contest. As the game came to a hard fought closing, the Tekes came from behind to tie the Sammies' two touchdowns and threatened to take the lead for themselves. But neither squad was able to break the deadlock and the final score was 12-12. Incidentally this is the second tie for SAM.

The first SAM score was made by Wise who took a lateral from Dubrow, receiving the kickoff, and skirted the sideline for a run of most of the field. Later Sobel passed to Wise on the goal line for another TD. For the fighting Tekes the first score was made by Engleman who intercepted a Sammie aerial and moved downfield behind fast forming blocking. Engleman threw the pass that was good for the Teke's final score to Engle just before he stepped out of the end zone. As an extra added feature this game was completed under the floodlights in the gloom of uncertainty. Final score 12-12.

Wednesday, the thirteenth, was bound to be unlucky for someone as the unbeaten Pi Kaps encountered the undefeatable Apple Pies. This game touted to be a blood battle was attended in force by rooting sections from both fraternities.

Through the best part of the first half, although both teams made long gains, neither was able to score. The Pi Kaps looked like they were to go into the lead first but the scoring play, a forward pass, Tesno to Dearolf, was recalled because of an alleged offside penalty. Seconds later a misplay found the Apple Pies downed in their own end-zone, providing a two-point lead for their opponents.

In the second half the Apple Pies forged ahead, to what appeared a dangerous lead when Mulhern completed a pass to Eisenhardt, who went across to score.

Brakelente and Tesno and Dearolf were the standout men on the Pi Kappa Phi team. For the Apple Pies Emerson, Mulhern, Mangan, and Aciernow were the stars.

Eligibility Rules For I-F Sports

One of the main aims of the I-F sports program is to provide an opportunity for the fraternity men of Drexel to participate in their favorite sport. In order that our I-F activities will not interfere with the athletic program of Drexel, the interfraternity council has set up certain rules governing eligibility for participation in these interfraternity contests. These regulations have been designed to prevent any man from playing in both interfraternity games and college games at the same time. Therefore, no man who has earned a varsity letter may ever compete in the interfraternity sport in which he has been awarded his letter. Some of the more important athletic regulations are:

Any man who has received a varsity letter for football shall be ineligible for interfraternity football during his college life at Drexel.

A man may not participate in interfraternity football during the year or years he is a member of the varsity or junior varsity squads.

The above rules apply to all the sports sponsored by the fraternities at Drexel. In certain isolated cases the interfraternity has overridden these regulations and granted permission to varsity award winners so that they may participate in interfraternity games.

The interfraternity football and bowling seasons will open this term, so let's all get out and support our team.

tained in letters written by the Ambassador while in Palestine and will include some of the personal difficulties involved in the life of an ambassador in that troubled country. The talk promises to be both interesting and informative. All students and faculty members are invited. The place—Penn Hillel House, 202 S. 36th Street; the time—Sunday, October 17, 1948 at 1:30.

Lehigh Drubs Dragons By 45 Point Margin

by WALT ELLMAN

Lehigh University's band paraded up and down the gridiron last Saturday before hostilities began and set the pattern for the engineers' grid machine to follow, and follow it did. Before the afternoon's festivities were complete, the Brown and White Engineers had broken the all time scoring record in the series by liquidating the Dragons by the overwhelming score of 45-0.

Dick Gabriel, Soph back from Valley Stream, N. Y., led the Lehigh avalanche by registering four touchdowns in the first quarter. Dominic Navarro reached pay dirt in the second stanza while Fisher and Smith tallied in the final period for the Engineers.

The Techmen's only scoring threat fizzled out on the Lehigh two-yard marker as the clock ran out at the close of the first half.

Lehigh scored before four minutes had elapsed in the first period. Behind beautiful downfield blocking, Dick Doyne, after a reverse from Dick Gabriel, raced 52 yards on the opening kick-off to place the pigskin in play on the Dragon 33. Dick would have gone all the way if Bob Stewart hadn't caught him. Gabriel scored for Lehigh five plays later.

Dick Gabriel tallied his second six pointer one minute later as he caught Joe Scannella's flip in the end zone. Before fifty-five seconds had passed, Gabriel was again crossing the Dragon goal—this time after a 42-yard sprint off tackle. As the period closed, Dick cashed in again by taking a lateral from Scannella and going eight yards to pay dirt.

In the second period the Dragons marched 80 yards and yet did not cross the double chalk line. Shifty running by Bigatel, Kolongowski, Gerlack, and Pietrocarlo moved the pigskin toward the Lehigh goal and netted the Blue and Gold five first downs. A pass, Kolongowski to Bigatel, for twenty yards, highlighted the Drexel drive. An intercepted pass stopped the Dragon bid for a score on the two, but a moment later the up-staters fumbled the pigskin, Tom Price recovering. The Atlantic clock at the west end of Taylor Field ran out as Bredbanner was trying in vain to score for the Dragons.

Gerlack, Brown, Donovan, and Ruzetski carried the mail for the Dragons in the second half due to injuries to Bigatel and Kolongowski during the first half. Gerlack bore most of the burden. Lou gave the Lehigh rooters a scare in the third period when he hit Hal Smith with a 40-yard flip. This was the last Dragon scoring threat of the day.

Teams Need Men

Seventy-five men reported for basketball tryouts Wednesday in the gym. They were greeted by Coach Chase, who assured them that team members would be picked by their performance on the court, and not by their names or previous records.

With nine lettermen from last year's team returning, and the huge turnout of new men, the possibilities of having an improved team are excellent.

The first week will consist of conditioning drills and corrections in style, and the program will be enlarged each week.

Any man interested in basketball who was unable to attend the meeting should contact Coach Chase in the gym office at the end of his day.

LACROSSE

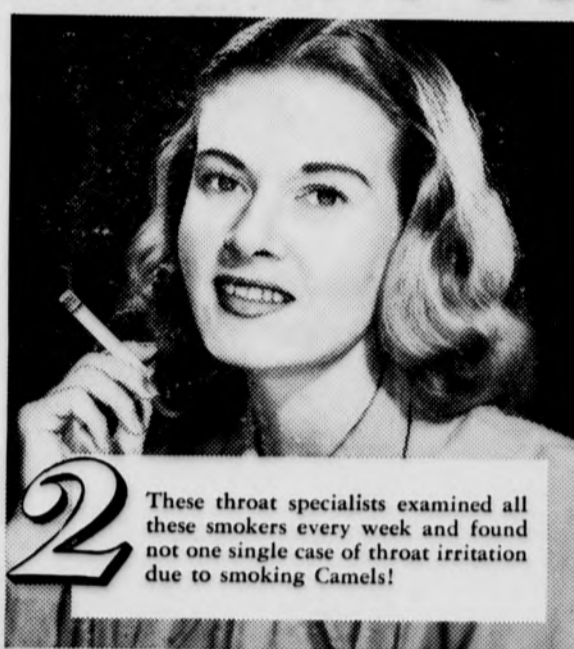

Building to the future, Lacrosse Coach Herman Epstein has slated fall lacrosse sessions. All men interested in learning fundamentals of lacrosse should report to the field Mondays and Wednesdays at 3:30 p.m. Aiding Ep with instruction are varsity men Bill Jenkins, Tucker Young, Ted Schwaab, and John Westing.

Nancy Shutts, our new Intra-Athlon representative.

See you all at the TKE house tonight and at fraternity open house tomorrow night, October 16.

Alphas, Zak's our Man-About Town, of course.

ALPHA PI LAMBDA

Alpha Pi's first "Coffee Dance" of the new term was well attended—almost to the point of overflowing. The enthusiastic reception of these informal affairs has made them an established part of the social calendar.

Freshmen, under the watchful guidance of house manager Bob Fey, joined house members last Saturday in a general clean-up campaign. Despite still unfinished plumbing repairs, we hope to have the house presentable for Homecoming Day.

Alpha Pi alumni will find a full program planned. After watching the Haverford game, alumni, members and their friends are invited to the house for the usual Warm-up. In the evening, at 8:30, there will be Open House, giving the fraters a chance to return the dorm girls' courtesies of a week ago.

ALPHA SIGMA ALPHA

Welcome back to the old grind! The Alpha's all hope you had a wonderful summer. Judging by the flashing diamonds on our Carolyn Bousom, Kitty Van Horn, Alice Whitaker, Louise Heine, Joan Beckley, and Sally Hamilton, not to mention the newly acquired fraternity pins of Marie Kelly and recent alum, Jamie Whitman, the Alpha Sigs had a busy summer. Those of us with a sweet tooth will be in ecstasy when the engaged girls bring their five pound boxes of candy to the meetings.

Congratulations are also due our new initiates, Jeanne Weand, Rita Boido, Janice Sutherland, Lois Laughery, and Miss Hellman, our new sponsor. We're glad to have you all with us.

The baby shower given for Bertie Pearson Jensen at the beginning of this term was a huge success. From all present indications the new arrival will be the best dressed baby of the year.

The question of the moment is which lucky fellow will be the "Real Gone Guy of Drexel!" Want to have your say in the matter? Of course you do, so buy your ticket and come see your king crowned under a dreamy Harvest Moon at the Alpha Sig's dance to be held in the Great Court, October 23. Speaking of dreams, all the sorority girls had one come true this year. We got our long-awaited Pan-Hellenic house. You helped us get it; now help us keep it by patronizing our A.S.A. Bake Shop in the Court on Wednesdays. It's really much more fun when you get something to eat when you donate your money. We appreciate your help; it's been real, keep it up!

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

The Lambda Chi Alpha fall social program will get under way tomorrow with the annual "Homecoming" celebration.

In the afternoon the Lambda Chis and their dates will take in the Drexel-Haverford encounter. A section of the stands has been set aside for the occasion. Following the game, the scene will switch to "3507 Baring" where a buffet supper will be served by a committee headed by Bob Davies.

In the evening dim lights and soft music will furnish the setting for an open-house dance. Rog Holt, social chairman, has arranged a swell program, so come on all you brothers, alumni and fellow Drexel students.

Sports

A spirited practice held by the touch football team the past week led by Cable, Christie and Fonner brought out several flaws in the team's play and with continued practice the squad promises to be tough for all opposition.

The bowling team will roll their first match on Wednesday. Lou Welzel thinks he has a championship team in the making.

Pledges

Congratulations to Don Burkhardt, Carl Cable, Hank Deiner and Jack Taylor who were recently pledged.

THETA CHI

Well, fellows, it looks like our "Football" dance last Saturday was a great success. By all reports, a swell time was had by all. Thanks to Tom Butler and his assistants for a swell job of publicizing the affair.

After the Haverford game tomorrow, refreshments will be served at the house. In the evening, the house will be open to all comers, with a house dance the feature attraction.

At the start of the season, Theta Chi is one point ahead in the race for the IF trophy.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Casey on the birth of a baby daughter. The engagement of Charlene Wiseman and John Downs was announced recently. Good luck, kids. Another recent happening is the pinning of Jessie Ashton to Fred Woerner. Jessie is one of the nurses at the Dormitory.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

Sammy shifted into high speed even before the school season started. Two weeks ago, after an informal party at the house where the pledges went through their capers, Sigma Alpha Mu helped cheer in the football season with banners and signs at the field. Then, Saturday night saw one of the most successful house dances ever held. To the wonderful rhythm of that rising new star in the entertainment field, Sunny Wells and his orchestra, the house looked like New Year's Eve on Times Square. We were exceptionally pleased to see many of our brothers from the Theta Chapter at Penn accept our invitation to help us initiate the new season. Sunday saw the serious business of formally initiating the new pledges into the chapter. Congratulations to Ronald Silverman, Don Luchs, Al Boscov, Mervan Isaacman, Lester Helmus, Barton Kligerman, Herb Botwin, Arnold Rothman, Mort Mozenzer, Leonard Ralfsky, and welcome into Sigma Alpha Mu. The house becomes a paradise with the addition of our new television set. Special thanks is forthcoming to those who voluntarily contributed for its procurement.

erected over the stairway near Anthony J. Drexel's statue and streamers from the goal post carried back over the handstand to the third floor. It made a fine picture of a happy crowd of dancers as seen from the balcony above.

Bob Fredericks leading his band kept those soft danceable tunes going and also presented several fast numbers for the benefit of the hepeats and jitterbugs. This organization is doing a very fine job of playing at the dances here at Drexel and is making many new friends through the excellent brand of music it provides. They will also appear again this term when they play for the Alpha Sigs' Harvest Moon Dance coming on Saturday, October 23.

Each fraternity man of Theta Chi wore a bright red carnation in his buttonhole, giving that added appearance of a well-planned function and also making it easy to identify the gracious hosts of the evening. Few of them probably realized that Bob Fredericks' handstands of red and white blended in perfectly.

A great deal of the credit for the success of the dance is due to the hard work of the fraternity brothers and particularly to Tom Butler, who worked in the dual capacity of Publicity and Decorations Chairman.

greet from Columbia University Teachers College in 1920. She also spent three years as an instructor at that University.

Since 1923 Miss Barber has been employed by the Kellogg Company as Dietitian and Director in charge of Home Economics.

In 1945 Miss Barber was given the Congressional Medal for Achievement, the highest non-military recognition given by the United States Government. She is also an honorary member of Omicron Nu.

Following the evening meeting and dinner the Alma Mater will be sung, the Alumni being led in the singing by Mr. Heaton.

It might seem that the program is complete and that Homecoming Day is over for another year, but not so. A big evening program is planned for everyone.

All Alumni are invited to visit the Drexel fraternities and especially the newly acquired Pan-Hellenic House. All will hold open house between 9:30 and midnight. The fraternity houses will be decorated especially for Homecoming Day. The fraternity house judged to have the best decorations will be awarded the "Little Brown Jug" by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

For those that care to dance, the Student Building will be open from 9:30 to midnight for informal dancing. It is to be stressed that all students are welcome to dance at the Student Building as well as Alumni. At midnight on October 16th the Drexel Homecoming Day of 1948 will be officially ended, and all here at Drexel sincerely hope that it will be a day pleasantly remembered by the Alumni.
