Dr. Merrill Resigns Chairmanship of Literature-Language Dept.

SAVE
WALTER
MERRILL

Dr. Walter M. Merrill resigned his post Tuesday as chairman of the Literature and Language Department, after serving in this capacity for the past two years. In his letter of resignation, Dr. Merrill cited his inability to "bring a satisfactory measure of unified strength to the Department of Literature and Language" and his "obligations to the Harvard University Press, to the National Endowment for the Humanities and especially to Drexel University to complete the major project of editing the letters of William Lloyd Garrison."

A search and selection committee has been formed to seek a replacement for Dr. Merrill, but this appointment is not expected to take place until September 1972. In the interim, Professor Murray C. Miller, Head of the General Studies Department of the Evening College will serve as the Departmental Chairman and Dr. Robert D. Wyatt will serve as Assistant Chairman.

Mr. Miller has stated that he feels a Department should continuously innovate with new programs and courses. At the same time, however, he feels that these innovations should be tested with small pilot programs and courses before making them standard policy. He thinks that in this manner, the bugs can be worked out and the changes evaluated before the school as a whole is subjected to them.

On another topic, Mr. Miller commented that he has been very favorably impressed with the amount of student input generated to the freshman advisors, particularly with regard to the controversial R001 writing course last Fall term. Although he has great respect for the advisors, he would prefer more input to come from the student department head than is presently forthcoming. His reasoning --- "the student department head generally reports exactly what the students are saying, but the advisors sometimes report on what they interpret the students to be saying."

On Monday, June 28, Drexel University will enter its third year of participation in the National Summer Youth Sports Program, which is co-sponsored by Drexel, the NCAA, and the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity. Over $70,000 of funds, food, and equipment has been donated for the project by the government, private industry, and the university.

The five-week program is run by members of the Drexel athletic and physical educational staff, and by community counselors and teachers in the Philadelphia school system. Three-hundred and twenty-five youngsters from the West Philadelphia area, ranging in age from 10 to 15 years of age will be participating in the program.

According to John Semanik, Drexel's director of physical education and athletics, and the program's coordinator, the objectives this year will be not only to teach the children good recreational and athletic techniques, but to instruct them in proper health and athletic practices. Another aspect will involve members of city, state and federal agencies who will be brought in to address the participants on such dangers as smoking, alcohol and drugs.

The program will run five times a week from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., and will feature a free lunch for the children, who will be instructed in sports ranging from swimming to lacrosse. Another highlight will be occasional visits by athletes from local, professional teams.

Athletic instruction, supervised by associate program director, Sterling Brown, will begin on Tuesday, June 29, after all participants have been given complete physical examinations on opening day.

Thoughts and Reflections on the Resignation of Walter Merrill

by Paul Autenrieth

Whoopie!!?

Upon first hearing that our old nemesis Dr. Merrill had resigned, I was tempted to leap for joy, or at least have a few beers at the Jailhouse in celebration. But then I got to thinking: what good does it really do? Revenge is sweet, but it doesn't solve anything. Will it tear down the barricades of doubt and distrust that were erected within the past year or so between the students and the administration? Will it bring Marty back to Drexel? Or Joel? How about Frank? Or Bruce? Would you believe Larry?

Too many things have happened for us to expect everyone concerned (on both sides) to forgive and forget, but we all must try if we are to EARN the title of "University".

The Battle Hymn of Lt. Merrill?

Rumors have been flying that Dr. Merrill was pressured by the higher-ups (i.e. Vice President for Academic Affairs Ralph Crouch) to resign. If they are just that -- rumors -- then Dr. Merrill is to be commended for following his conscience, and the reasons he outlined in his letter of resignation to Dr. Hagerty are to be respected. If the rumors are true, however, we have quite a different situation, one that disgustingly parallels the My Lai trials.

Perhaps a bit of background information is in order here. During the student sit-in last year, the students viewed four men (President Hagerty, Vice President Crouch, Dean Hallwachs, and Chairman Merrill) as being primarily responsible for the firing of Kellman. The "Out to Lunch" sign on Dr. Merrill's office door made him a favorite target for abuse, and he consequently became identified as "the man who fired Marty."

Now (if the rumors are true), Dr. Merrill has himself fallen victim to the infamous Drexel shaft, the implication being "the students said it was all his fault so we got rid of him, since we always listen to student input." Poetic justice in a way, but it's just not right. Dr. Merrill should by no means to be exonerated of his actions on the defense that he was not the only one responsible, but neither should he be crucified to take the pressure off others. I saw too much scapegoatism in the Calley trail. It made me sick then, and it makes me sick now.

PHEAA Budget Hearing

Budget hearings continued this week in the House and Senate. In the Senate a hearing was held for the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA), recognized primarily as the administrator of the State scholarship program.

PHEAA is requesting a total of $71.0 million for fiscal 1971-72; Governor Shapp has recommended $66.7 million. Under the scholarship portion of the request, PHEAA requested an increase in scholarship funds of $10.4 million. The chief justification for the increase is a suggested restoration of the $1,200 maximum award authorized by existing law, and to permit increasing the amount of awards to 100% of tuition and fees up to established maximums.

Currently, no scholarship award may exceed 80% of tuition and fees up to a maximum of $800. PHEAA would continue to limit awards to 80% of tuition and fees but raise the maximum to $1200 for a student attending a Pennsylvania institution ($800 for a student attending a non-Pennsylvania institution). An exception to the 80% of tuition and fees rule would occur where the gross family income is $8,000 or less. The awards would then increase to 100% of tuition and fees.

Several senators voiced concern that students attending a State-owned, State related or State-aided institution already receive a "scholarship" from the Commonwealth through State subsidization of the institution. Such a "scholarship" obviously is not based on student need.

Four college presidents (representing Gettysburg, Waynesburg, St. Joseph's and Albright Colleges) presented statements after PHEAA Executive Director Ken Reeher. All four fully endorsed the State scholarship program, noting that without it their respective institutions would be in grave financial condition. The tremendous cost to the Commonwealth of absorbing into the public higher education system students forced to leave private institutions (due to prohibitive costs or closing down if scholarships were terminated) was stressed.

Co-op Talk

"This is a very critical quarter," said Steward B. Collins, director of the Cooperative Education Department. Of the 1728 students on co-op summer term, 1652 have been confirmed, which is co-op talk for employed. This total includes 141 freshmen. Many students are still being interviewed, 47 to be exact. Only 29 students are not employed and not being currently interviewed.

Collins said that "some kids don't really care about working at all." He expressed shock that some five or six students he had met weren't interested in working.

Looking to the fall Collins said he was looking for "future improvement." He also pointed out that the figures above are changing all the time and are not final.

COMPARATIVE SURVEY OF BLACK UNDERGRADUATE ENROLLMENTS IN PHILADELPHIA REGION

The following table contains some interesting data comparing the various universities, colleges, and junior colleges in the Philadelphia area. The table shows the schools' black enrollments as a function of their total enrollments. This chart was abstracted by the Department of Education from a national compilation published by the Chronicle of Higher Education which in turn, obtained its data from the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The inordinate jump in Drexel's black and total enrollments between 1968-69 and 1969-70 seems to indicate that before 1969 the university did not include Evening College undergraduates in the statistics it gave the

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES, 1967-68-1970-71

If this is the case, the indicated total increase in black enrollment over the four year period (266 students) is deceptive; the actual figure would probably be much lower. -- ed.

A peace letter from trade unionists

The National Peace Action Coalition, which organized the April 24 demonstrations in Washington and San Francisco, is hosting a national convention of the antiwar movement on July 2-4 in New York City. A call to the convention is enclosed. We are among those trade unionists who support the convention and are building labor participation.

We believe that the April 24 demonstrations proved that the National Peace Action Coalition is capable of uniting large numbers of people on the basis of their common opposition to the war. It is a broadly based and democratically organized coalition with a completely responsible program of action to which labor can easily relate. It has assembled a representative leadership, including many from the trade union movement.

Every opinion poll, every referendum, every survey shows that working people oppose the war in Indochina. They are increasingly raising their voices to say "NO!" to the ever escalating moves by the administration to make them pay the price of this ruinous war.

THERE ISN'T ANY WAY WE CAN SOLVE OUR

PROBLEMS AS TRADE UNIONISTS WITHOUT BRINGING AN END TO THIS WAR. While billions are poured into the war, we are faced with war-induced inflation, cutting deeper and deeper into paychecks. National unemployment is 6.2% and continues to rise, hitting hardest at returning veterans, young workers, and our Black and Brown brothers and sisters. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports the unemployment rate of young Black workers in urban areas as 44.9% for May, 1971. The hard won gains of labor are being eroded as the administration responds to our demands with anti-labor actions, such as the suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act.

On April 24, nearly a million Americans showed their opposition to the war in massive, legal and peaceful demonstrations.

For the first time in large numbers, trade unionists participated, under union banners, demanding an immediate end to the war and its disastrous domestic consequences. The myth of labor reaction and support for the war can no longer be maintained.

This fact could not have been lost on the Nixon administration, which understands that it means when organized labor, with its tremendous political power and economic weight, actively joins the fight to end the war. Nor was it lost to the hundreds of thousands of young people, Blacks, Brown, Chicano, Women, peace activists who look to labor to play a decisive role.

The convention will give us a chance to be touch with other sections of the movement and directly participate in the decision making. At the same time, as trade unionists we have special concerns and problems. We will meet in the labor shop to discuss ways of increasing labor participation, to work out the most effective methods of participation, as well as organization and structure of a peace movement within the trade unions which collaborate and work side by side with other sections of the antiwar movement.

We hope you will join us at the convention.

We think you'll like them.

Our illustrated brochure tells you all about Fetherlite and NuForm. And about seven other American brands which we have carefully selected from the more than one hundred kinds available today. And we explain the differences.

Berrigan case:

Terry McHugh and you

by tony evans

The following is our best attempt to clearly and understandably present a story that deals with the fate of at least one individual and very possibly a second. The first is a young lady who may or may not be known by you. The second is you. For your own sake, keep reading.

Our method of helping you understand will be to let you see and feel the proceedings and atmosphere of the Berrigan Grand Jury Case and examine the situation of our individuals — Terry McHugh and You.

We'll begin with a grand jury. An investigating Grand Jury is called to listen to evidence presented by the prosecution to determine if it is sufficient to bring the defendant to trial. It does not, however, determine guilt or innocence. One method available to this kind of Grand Jury for examining and considering evidence is the calling of persons that prosecution believes to be knowledgeable of the crime. Because the constitution guarantees that a person cannot be forced to incriminate himself, an investigating Grand Jury has the power to grant that person immunity from prosecution. Refusal to yield the desired information after immunity has been granted legally constitutes contempt of court. Specifically now, in the Berrigan Case, an investigating Grand Jury has been called and is making use of its ability to summon witnesses and grant immunity in an attempt to uncover the dual kidnap conspiracy and bombing plot.

Where do our individuals fall in this legal tangle? Terry McHugh, a Temple University student, is a sympathizer with the expressed ideals of those involved in the Berrigan Case. She has said "yes" to the lives of these people and their beliefs; "yes" to their love of man and value of life; "yes" to their burning desire to eradicate war and violence.

Terry has been called to give witness before the Grand Jury — testimony that could incriminate these people by submitting to questions about actions she believes governed by the law of God regardless of their judgment by the law of man. Whether these activities did or did not take place has no bearing on her responsibility to protect her ideals. She has no other moral choice but to refuse to surrender these principles. Although Terry has been given immunity, she still refuses to testify on the grounds of the First Amendment — the right to hold and speak such ideals — and the Fifth Amendment, the constitutional right to have these ideals protected.

Because Terry has refused to testify and refused to accept immunity, she has been convicted for civil contempt of court. She will be sentenced to imprisonment for the duration of the Grand Jury, approximately 14 months. Realizing that should she testify, incrimination would fall on any individual or group she would be sworn to name, Terry knows that they too would be unable to testify for the same reasons she cannot and would be jailed for their refusal. She cannot morally permit this to happen; and so she will lose her freedom for protecting her principles.

Let us look at what has happened. In effect, an individual is being denied the right to hold a belief. She is being denied the right to protect her ideals. These infringements are the work of the Grand Jury system. Through the efforts of the Federal prosecution, this system is being made a tool to eliminate legitimate moral dissent on issues such as war and violence. The method is the calling of witnesses who cannot morally testify, thereby having those dissidents jailed, purged from society without having committed a crime.

And how about our other individual — You! Do you have the right to hold a specific belief? Do YOU have the right to defend your ideals? Should YOU be jailed for refusing to assist in the prosecution of your own point of view? CAN YOU ALLOW another to be imprisoned for this reason? There is only one absolute in this case; Terry McHugh WILL go to jail.

shops and plenary sessions to discuss action proposals.

According to Jerry Gordon, national NPAC coordinator, "This conference is open to all who oppose the war. All who attend this conference will have voice and vote."

Buses will be leaving from Philadelphia Friday, July 2nd, at 4:00 and 5:30 p.m. from 30th Street Station. Round trip fare will be $6.50.
