Drexel University was dedicated as the Drexel Institute of Art, Science and Industry on December 17, 1891 at a ceremony attended by such notable figures as Andrew Carnegie and Thomas A. Edison. The entire campus consisted of nothing more than the Main Building located at 32nd and Chestnut Streets.

Things were a bit different back then. Drexel was originally divided into 11 separate departments, though students were allowed to enroll outside their primary department. The ancestor of Nesbitt Hall, was Andrew Carnegie's gift to the university, and the first off-campus housing was completed in 1918 with the arrival of the Sarah Drexel Van Arnum Dormitory for Women. Stratton Hall was built in 1955 on a site our founder, Anthony J. Drexel, had set aside as a park for student enjoyment.

In 1979, Drexel became known as an Institute of Technology. Expansion continued and a burgeoning student population forced a flurry of expansion in the ’80s. Additions during that decade included the Drexel Activities Center (now the Creese Student Center), Commonwealth, Drexel, Kelly, and Matheson Halls.

More recent additions, starting in 1970, include Nesbitt Hall, the Engineering Research Labs, the Parking Facility, Calhoun Hall, the Educational Activities Center, Mandell Theater, the Physical Education Center, and the most recent addition, the New Residence Hall.

In 1970, Drexel Institute of Technology became a full-fledged university consisting of seven colleges offering students a wide range of educational and vocational opportunities. The prime attraction, however, is still the brainchild of A.J. Drexel, the Drexel Plan for Cooperative Education.

Dear Freshmen,

The staff of the Drexel Triangle offers this, the Freshman Issue, as a welcoming statement to its newest residents. This issue is a yearly feature highlighting the information a student will need to enjoy the next few years.

For those who don’t know, the Triangle is Drexel University’s weekly newspaper, published solely by students. It is your newspaper. If you like what you see, or don’t like what you see and feel compelled to change it, come see us. Our office is in room 3014 of the FAC.

We wish you the best of luck in your first year here at Drexel, and hope that the information contained in this issue will be beneficial.

Dean of Freshman is ready to help

by Francine D'Alessandro

If you have an academic problem or question and you're a freshman, the first place you should look for help is the Dean of Freshmen's office, headed by Dr. John D'Alessandro, with Mrs. Ann Beth Barnard in the position of Assistant Dean.

Dean D'Alessandro is the designated academic dean for all freshmen, regardless of their majors. As he explained, "we deal with all the academic questions that freshmen have about their curriculum, and also faculty-student interactions, course information, and new courses on the freshman level."

Dean D'Alessandro is also a good person to talk to if you just want to talk to someone about Drexel. He graduated from here in 1967 with a degree in electrical engineering. He took over the position. Reviewing his first year as Dean of Freshmen, D'Alessandro said, "It's been educational. The thing that's impressed me most is the way students are involved in activities. There are more than 50 different organizations that a freshman can join, not to mention professional societies and various other clubs. Students perception is that they're apathetic, but they aren't at all. My experience is that they're very enthusiastic and volunteer way beyond expectations. They really want to give of themselves."

Dean D'Alessandro enjoys working with students, and he has evidence supporting this fact. Having received three different teaching awards in two years, Assistant Dean Dr. Barnard has worked with many members of the Drexel community, both faculty and students trying to make Drexel a more comfortable place for first-year students. He started a tutorial service this past year (with tutors serving as the tutors for freshmen, this, by the way, is a free service). He is presently working on the initiation of an academic advisory system with faculty members as advisors. With the cooperation of faculty from different colleges, students will have the opportunity to speak to people in the fields that they are interested in.

Dean D'Alessandro has a high opinion of the Drexel freshmen. They appear to be "well rounded students, with a sense of maturity that's higher than what one would expect." Entering students also seem to have a "sense of purpose" and "realistic expectations."

As for the class of 1984, this year's freshman class, Dean D'Alessandro already speaks proudly about. He noted how this year's class is the largest to date and also one of the best. And then, after a mention of Orwell's 1984, he smiled and said, "I have a feeling that they're going to be a famous class."

Tuition is only part of University revenue

For the academic year 1979-80, all freshmen and most upperclassmen are paying $220 for tuition. Students in the four-year Business and Humanities programs, and all Neale upperclassmen are paying $300. In addition, all students must add up $207 for the general fee and some pay $65 for the optional insurance policy.

As had as it may seem, the tuition and fees paid by all students represent only 60% of the $4,133,521 expected revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980. The University also relies on many other sources of revenue.

According to the proposed budget for 1979-80, which was approved by the Board of Trustees, $3,379,707, or 11.95% is expected to come from research activities. The trustees also received $1,693,459, or 5.82%, as a result of contributions from alumni and friends. They also approved $3,200,537, or 10.54%, from student operating and maintenance fees.

The University also receives $41,303,078, or 14.58%, as a result of the sale of research equipment and the sale of bonds. This is derived from endowment income, funds from students, and other sources. A total of $12,491,873, or 22.75%, is expected to be applied to instruction. This includes the salaries of teachers and other related positions, equipment and supplies.

Other planned expenditures include $3,928,369 for student services, $3,831,340 for academic support, $935,959 for institutional support, $130,000 for student activities, $25,000 for students' organizations, and $25,000 for the University's library.

The following proposed expenditures are expected to be $4,133,521, or 11.95%, of the $4,951,543 revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980. The University also relies on many other sources of revenue.

The remainder of the revenue is derived from endowment income, student aid appropriation, and other sources. This year's proposed budget is $4,951,543, or 11% larger than last year's.

The proposed budget is $4,951,543, or 11% larger than last year's. This money is allocated over three months based on need, shown by a report filed by the University to the Board of Trustees.

According to the proposed budget, the University's income is expected to be $4,133,521, or 11% larger than last year's. This includes tuition and fees paid by all students, some grants from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and other sources.

The following is a list of most of the extracurricular activities offered on campus which are open to all students. Some may be inactive at the present time, others will place announcements in the Triangle informing you of meeting dates, times, and places. If you would like to get in touch with any particular activity, look for an announcement, or leave your name and phone number in the organization's mail box, across from the Main Desk in the Creese Student Center.

The Creese Student Center operations will receive $44 of the $250 and the Educational Activities Center will receive $15. The remaining $43 is used to help support laboratory, the Health Center, Library, and to establish a plant fund.

The funds appropriated to the EAC and CSC are used to maintain areas where student activities are situated such as the game room, lounges and student organization offices. The money is also used to finance the debt service for both the instructional and auxiliary services. A debt service can simply be defined as an annual payment to repay an outstanding mortgage. Debt service is paid from student fees.

Financial Aid offers Money for Many

by Neil Schneirring

During the 1977-78 school year, Drexel's Financial Aid Office processed $8.7 million in outside loans and grants to over 3,700 undergraduate day students. These figures are increased over the previous year, and according to Frank McKerrow, Director of Financial Aid, they will continue to increase, since the requirements for eligibility are becoming more relaxed.

One type of financial aid is grants. These grants are free monies awarded to students who show financial need. The amount of a grant depends on the degree of need shown by the student.

A 9,000 undergraduate day students were recipients of Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) grants. These grants range in amounts from $10 to $150,000. There is a lifetime limit of $6,000 per student.

PHEAA grants PHEAA renewals are automatically sent out to students. First time applicants should inquire at the Financial Aid Office for the next year, since the deadline for this school year was May 1, 1978.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) Program provides amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000 per year. This money is applied to expenses arising from books and living costs. The need, which determines the amount of the grant, is determined by the government. The deadline for filing a BEOG application for the school year is March 15, 1979. If grants are awarded after tuition is paid, students will receive a refund.

Drexel also awards monies in the form of endowed scholarships. Any applicant for Drexel Aid is automatically considered for these various grants. Some are listed in the Drexel University Bulletin.

The interest rate for SGL is 7%. However, if your adjusted family income is less than $20,000 when using the appropriate formula, the federal government will pay the interest until nine months after graduation or withdrawal from school.

A work-study program is also available for students who meet certain requirements. These are jobs supported by federal funds on Drexel's campus. The program attempts to match students with a job that is related to their major. However, each year, less funds are provided for the program and the number of positions is decreasing.

In Pennsylvania, SGL can be obtained either through a private lending institution or through PHEAA. Applications are available at banks and renewals are automatically sent out. The maximum amount for a SGL is $1,000 per year and $3,000 maximum.

If you want to study and don’t know where to start, tutor Mark Jagger. He’s ready to help you.

After the first four weeks of school: the spirit of change usually disappears with the stark reality of mid-term exam results. As students begin digging in for the battle of the term, many realize that they aren’t going to make it alone but that many experienced people are waiting to offer assistance all around Drexel, free of charge. A good place to start is the Dean of Freshmen’s Office. They will tell you which groups of tutors are involved in certain areas of study. In addition, the freshman council keeps a file of people who volunteer their time and work on a one-to-one basis. You call them and arrange times convenient to both.

Drexel expands to meet need

by Neil Schmerling

While other colleges and universities across the country are experiencing smaller enrollments, Drexel has been admitting more students every year. Due to the large number of applicants, enrollment for this past year is especially good for students who wish to begin with a Bachelor’s degree in Engineering.

Hagerty believes that the program should have approximately 800 students. The number of undergraduate enrollment in the Business College remains constant. To complete the program, Ph.D. in Business and Administration would be offered.

Although a site for the MBA building has not been formally approved, the university plans to build it along 33rd St. between Market and Ludlow.

The easiest to keep full, Hagerty believes that the MBA building would be expanded to properly support the number of new Ph.D. students. Health Center: Help When you Hurt

The Dragon's Den is Drexel's own fast food restaurant. It is located on the Ground Floor of the Creese Student Center next to the cafeteria. It is the closest hamburger joint in seven blocks and serves food at a good price.

The Dragon's Den food area is considered necessary. The Dragon's Den serves an average of 600 people a day.

Hints for Successful Study

Starting September 29, it will be open Saturdays between 11:00 and 2:00. Meat platters can be purchased either A or B for tickets for lunch, but not both.

Since its opening in January 1978, Les Lewis, Director of the Dragon's Den, says that it has never gotten the business it thought it would, but after a year in operation they have learned a lot about the operation of a fast food restaurant and expect a better crowd this year.

The restaurant utilizes student labor to help foreign tuition costs for some students. Any one wishing a job can apply at the Dragon's Den through Pat Bliger.

HINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL STUDY

Don't expect to do well on tests if you do not answer questions that were worked but have the wrong answer.

If the test material is due the next day, here are some tips:

1. Don't cram for three days to catch up and read the information you are unable to handle the course work
2. Don't panic.
3. Examine the test closely and try to study and learn three weeks of material in one night.
4. If there is more than one answer, do not put in an adequate preparation rather than lack of ability.
5. Can you have it? Do you need to be a straight A student? All you add is yourself to the course work
6. How did you prepare for the test? Did you get in an adequate amount of time on the course material all along? Did you understand the theory behind the work?
7. Get up and find it marked all over the test. Did you understand the theory behind the work?
8. Get up and find it marked all over the test. Did you understand the theory behind the work?
9. Get up and find it marked all over the test. Did you understand the theory behind the work?

Finding your own

by Eric Valaika

"Why am I counting erases here in South Philly when I could be working for E.F. Hutton?" You may ask yourself a question similar to this one if, in the near future, you become disenchanted with your co-op job. If you fall into this category, you may wish to find your own job. This is perfectly acceptable, but there are some rules which the co-op department has concerning this procedure.

If you wish to seek your own co-op job, you must get approval from your coordinator before you start to look. This procedure assures that the other students who are depending on their coordinator for jobs get a chance at what is available. If and when you find a job which you feel is particularly available if and when you find a job, the co-op department acts only to refer you to the job. You must obtain the job on your own merits. The number of jobs available to Drexel students has remained fairly steady over the past few years, and with other colleges and universities starting up and enrolling their own work-in-industry programs, competition for jobs which were once reserved for Drexel students has increased dramatically. Consequently, employers are looking for what they consider the best candidate. Co-op is no longer a guarantee of a job. It is an opportunity.

Jobs in some areas are more plentiful than in others. Engineering, sales, financial, and chemical, seem to get the best jobs. Job prospects for civil engineers have improved over last year with an upturn in the construction industry. Business majors may find that the availability of employment is much better in the fall, determined by animal business cycles. The hold especially true for accounting majors.

You will probably first meet with your coordinator in a group session sometime in October. You will be notified at the time and place of the meeting. At this meeting, your coordinator will familiarize you with the co-op program and distribute record cards and sample employer application forms. This will not be until winter term, when the co-op department has received your first term grades, that you will have a personal interview with your coordinator. At this meeting, you can get to know your coordinator, ask questions, and inform him of your interests and needs. You may not explicitly state what you want in a co-op job; but merely give an idea of what career goals you have at the present time. With this information, your coordinator can help pinpoint your interests and direct you in your job search. If you choose to work during the summer after your freshman year, you may be able to use that work experience as deferred co-op credit. By taking a part-time job, you always have an industry experience "backing you" in the event that you cannot attend school in some future term due to unforeseen circumstances. Your deferred credit cannot, however, be used as a means toward early graduation. Sorry.

When your coordinator finds a possible job for you, you will be probably be expected to take an interview with the employer. The interview may be crucial to the employer's decision to employ you, so it is important to make a good impression. Men are usually expected to wear a tie and jacket. Women should dress neatly, and preferably should wear a skirt. Some of the qualifications employers look for are a good cumulative average interest in the specific field, outside activities, and a responsible demeanor. When talking with your prospective employer, try to be self-assured, but not too smug or arrogant. Ask a lot of questions, but be sure they are intelligent ones. Above all, maintain a relaxed attitude during the interview, and be yourself.

If your first co-op experience is disenchanting, take heart, because you have gained more knowledge and experience. Each successive job, even if not directly related to your field, will prepare you more fully in entering similar situations in the future. That, after all, is the purpose of the co-op program.
Accounting Society

The Accounting Society has been organized to provide programs for students for both educational and social purposes. Membership participation in the Society is voluntary, and it promotes the type of successful program that is most relevant. During the fall term, the Accounting Society had a membership of over 200 students. One of our primary goals is to aid the students' educational efforts. To achieve this goal, the Accounting Society offers free tutoring to those who request help. Our tutoring service can be reached by dropping a letter in our mailbox in the Accounting Department, 5th floor, S. W. 3.

Throughout the year, speakers from public and private accounting firms will address the Accounting Society. In addition, we will invite people from the community to give a presentation to speak before our society. Students have the opportunity to ask questions at all of our meetings.

Below we have listed a TENTATIVE schedule of events for the fall term.

Tues., Oct. 2 - General Meeting - 1:00 - 1:30
Tues., Oct. 9 - Del-Lunch 12:00-1:00
Thurs., Oct. 12 - Interviewing Techniques 1:00 - 3:00
Tues., Oct. 17 - Women in Accounting (Tentative) - 1:00 - 1:30
Tues., Nov. 6 - Coffee & Donuts - 11:00 - 11:30
Tues., Nov. 13 - General Meeting - 1:00 - 1:30
Membership assistance and ideas are necessary for current and future events. To make this a success, the members must work together. Another way to help our organization is to devote toward the success of your organization will be appreciated. Currently, there are 23 members on the Accounting Society members at the next meeting. Our mailbox is located in the Accounting Department, 5th floor, S. W. 3.

We support the field of law and are concerned with the law school curriculum. To promote the study of law, we sponsor or co-sponsor several speakers from the legal community to make a trip to the United States Supreme Court.

Although under the sponsorship of the Business Law Department, we are actively seeking new membership from the engineering and science colleges to complement such traditional areas of interest as corporate, business law, as well as the growing fields of patent and environmental law.

All students interested in law school or the law are welcome.

Christian Science

The Christian Science Organization at Drexel University meets every other week when class is in session, from 1:30 in room 301 in the Educational Activities Center. These meetings include readings from the King James Bible and the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, as well as sharing of healings and experiences in using Christian Science. All students and faculty are invited to attend.

The final meeting of fall term will be on Thursday, September 27, when the theme will be Back the Night. A slide show about violence against women.

Reverend Dean Snyder, director of Adnry, Ministry, would also like to be involved with other social issues presently facing the world. There is a possibility that the Ministry will help take over some of the "foot soldiers" and the needs of those in need of Christian Science in your area. We will have some experience. You may also make an appointment with him if you like. She will be glad to talk with you and will help you to become a Christian Science.

On Wednesday, February 6, at 1:00, Mrs. Gwendolyn Bayless of New York City, will talk at Drexel University on Christian Science. Please note the date on your calendar, and watch the classified section of the Sunday newspaper for ads.

Bible Law has a bowling club that is limited to intercollegiate competition. Any team member wishing to join will have to be classified as an on campus bowling league. In the past, Bible Law has been able to have bowling leagues help students provide with students a social activity which would otherwise be impossible.

Snyder explained that "a lot of our programs are a chance to have fun and to develop friendships; it is a chance for protestant kids to meet other protestant kids.

This is especially important since our women's intercollegiate team is in a building stage and our men's team is trying to return to the top of the league since it was formed. In the past, Bible Law has been interested in intercollegiate competition. To sponsor or co-sponsor several speakers from the legal community to make a trip to the United States Supreme Court.

Although under the sponsorship of the Business Law Department, we are actively seeking new membership from the engineering and science colleges to complement such traditional areas of interest as corporate, business law, as well as the growing fields of patent and environmental law.

All students interested in law school or the law are welcome.

The Drexel University chapter of SAM is one of the most active in the country. Last year our chapter conducted many in- dustry tours which included GENERAL MOTORS ASSEMBLY PLANT, SCHMITT'S BAVARIAN BISTRO, and the New York STOCK EXCHANGE to name a few. In addition, our chapter arranges expert guest speakers—executives of industry who are interested in meeting students with SAM members their views on the various aspects of industry and management. Guest speakers and special events provided SAM members the views of industry leaders and provided an opportunity to mix with SAM members.

The brothers and Little Sisters of the Lambda Chi Alpha are pleased to welcome you to Philadelphia and to the Drexel University Campus. We sincerely hope that your years at Drexel will be both enjoyable and successful.

We have been a fraternity since 1889 and are now beginning our 120th year in the service of our students. Our chapter is located within the Student Union, right next to the Student Activities Office.

The Lambda Chi Alpha (LCA) is dedicated to the idea that through a close association with its members, we can grow into better men for the future. One of the main goals of our chapter is to provide a program of activities that are both social and educational.

Our chapter is housed in the Sorority House on 32nd Street, just a few blocks from the Center City area. We have a large library and study area, as well as a large outdoor area for picnics and barbecues. We also have a small outdoor pool and tennis courts.

During the fall rush, our members are exposed to a variety of different organizations and social events. Our chapter is involved in a variety of organizations, including the Interfraternity Council, the Panhellenic Council, and the National Honor Society.

The Lambda Chi Alpha has a distinguished history of leadership in student government, athletics, and community service. We have a strong tradition of community service and are active in various volunteer organizations.

The Lambda Chi Alpha is a place where you can meet new friends and make lasting memories. We are looking forward to welcoming you to the Drexel University Campus.
Letters from the Academic Deans

Dean of Business and Administration

Welcome to the College of Engineering. I wish to take this opportunity to tell you of the many opportunities available to you during the next five years.

Student Organizations

Dean of Engineering

Many of you may be unsure of which area of engineering you wish to enter. While at Drexel during the freshman year, you will be exposed to all of the engineering disciplines. I strongly advise that you take a variety of freshman courses to help you better understand each of the five engineering disciplines: chemical, civil, electrical, materials, and mechanical engineering. For those students who have already made a choice, E102, E103: the engineering degree program, and E202: "The Impact of Engineering on Society and the Individual" will be interesting courses.

By the end of the freshman year, each of you should have made a choice of one of the five basic curricula. Making this decision is important because your co-op job, which begins in your senior year, will depend on the area that you choose. Your co-op experience will enable you to learn more about the different kind of career opportunities in each of the engineering disciplines. Your co-op experience will also help you choose a topic for your design project.

In the arena of sports, Drexel baseball, basketball, and soccer provide the airwaves at Drexel. We bring the basketball action to Drexel fans. And we expand our work outside the university.

Drexel's Newman Center is based on building a faith-community of people who care and share. The Center has a four fold program. The religious programs include masses, Bible studies, and socials. Counseling is also available at the Center.

Welcome to the College of Business and Administration. I wish to take this opportunity to tell you of the many opportunities available to you during the next five years.

Chairman of the Board

Dean of Engineering

1. How do I know if this is the right major for me? We suggest that you talk to your departmental advisor or our career services advisor. They can help you explore different majors and careers. Remember, the decision to choose a major is important because it will affect your future career path.

2. How do I choose a topic for my design project? You should choose a topic that interests you and that you think you can realistically complete within the timeframe of your project. Consider your strengths and weaknesses, as well as your interests and passions.

3. How do I find a co-op job? To find a co-op job, you should start preparing early. Look for opportunities on campus and in the local community. You can also search online job boards and networking with alumni and industry contacts.

4. What is the future of engineering? The future of engineering is uncertain, but it is expected to grow in importance and scope. As technology advances, there will be a greater demand for engineers with a wide range of skills.

5. How do I balance my academic and personal life? Balancing your academic and personal life can be challenging. It is important to prioritize your obligations and make time for self-care. Setting realistic goals and establishing routines can also help you manage your time effectively.
Welcome to Drexel, and welcome to Nesbitt.

You are on the threshold of what will probably be the most privileged time of your life. At no other time in your life will you likely have as many academic/professional concerns to worry about as many as you can think of deeply and broadly as you can. It will probably also be the time when you work the hardest, both in your studies and, for the most of you, in part-time employment. College is a new challenge. It is sometimes delightful, sometimes daunting. The first challenge you will encounter is how to organize your time. You have to allot your time differently from before among your classes, your part-time employment, and your social life. College assignments require more time and thought than most assignments you have done until now.

After you have successfully organized your time and efforts, then begin to get more involved. Go out and seek information. Learn about the College and the University. What you gain from college will not be in relation to your tuition, but as great an investment as that is, but will be in relation to your willingness to invest the time and effort in your studies and your ambitions to be open to new experiences both within and without the classroom and laboratory.

The world has need of people disciplined in the scientific thought and its applications, with zest for their field of study and respect for the human race. To invest your time and effort in this kind of education is the equivalent of being open to new experiences both within and without the classroom and laboratory.

The central academic/professional concern of Nesbitt College is the individual human in the near environment and the far environment of the understanding of art, and/or social science, and/or physical science, in order to provide in that environment what will promote and elevate the development of that individual human.

Nesbitt's four basic departments, reflected in the complete name of the College are: Design, Home Economics, Human Behavior and Development, and Nutrition and Food Sciences. The various areas of specific application are listed in the Drexel Bulletin, and were reviewed with you when you pre-registered.

Students in Nesbitt are required to take course work in different basic areas of study in order to be aware of different systematic ways of viewing the world in which we live, as well as course work in the basic area appropriate to their particular field of study as they learn to think in that particular systematic way, as well as applied courses and co-op employment to gain tangible evidence to themselves and to others that they can use their thinking effectively and in a way appropriate to today's world.

Student professional organizations increase your awareness about your profession.

Because you are on your own more than ever before, you will need to initiate seeking our information and advice. In Nesbitt College we are qualified, concerned people willing to help. We suggest that you get more Total performance in the "real" world. It will be up to you to make wise, independent decisions based on accurate facts, clear reasoning, and full understanding.

College offers interdisciplinary majors. I've already had an opportunity to welcome most of you personally during the pre-registration period earlier in the summer, and I'd like to re-emphasize some of the ideas I presented to you then.

I still think the most important thing for you to do during your first few weeks at Drexel is to study seriously and with concentration until you determine what is required to maintain the level of achievement which will satisfy you. The selection process is designed to provide opportunities to work as paraprofessionals in academic/professional concerns and continue to do so in the years that follow.

To incoming students:

From: Francis K. Davis, Dean, College of Science

I would like to take this time to welcome you to Drexel. As the Student Dean of Science, I want to encourage all of you to look into Drexel's many clubs and activities. You will find that you have many opportunities to acquire knowledge and experience in your area of concentration when you return from your assignment in research and, personnel are happy to welcome you on campus. You will also find that the College of Science and Engineering offers a wide variety of courses in the fields of science. Many of these courses are designed to provide opportunities to work as paraprofessionals in academic/professional concerns and continue to do so in the years that follow.

Dean of Students: He’s here to help

by Francine Doiwes

Sooner or later every Drexel student finds that he or she must go to the Dean of Students office. Two of the main reasons students must go there are to get their ID cards, and also to obtain parking permits. But the Dean of Students office, with Dr. James Hallam, is in the title position, is a much more vital part of Drexel, and it’s good to know of the many purposes it serves.

Basically, this office deals with "all non-curricular matters affecting students," as Dean Hallam puts it. "We care a great deal about the quality of the student life at Drexel. We hope to assist students to become aware, creative, and focused people," he says, when he says "we", Dean Hallam is including Associate Deans Janie Stellwagen and Walter Womack. Working together with students, there three people deal with a wide variety of student affairs, such as student organizations, along with doing quite a bit of personal counseling.

Dean Hallam explained how the various responsibilities of the office are divided between Deans Womack and Stellwagen and himself. For example, Jane Stellwagen is in charge of transfer student programs, women’s programs and the Key to Triangle. Drexel’s literary magazine. Dr. Womack is the advisor for WK-DU, Drexel’s radio station, and handles minority programs and affairs. Dean Hallam helps foreign students with immigration procedures, and also is in charge of withdrawal procedures at Drexel.

These services are just a few of the non-curriculum related student affairs that the Dean of Students office handles. Combining all their different responsibilities makes the office a busy place to work in. Every term there is a student present working on co-op. Hallam explained that the co-op student actually takes on administrative tasks, and also doesn’t do secretarial work.

Apart from the duties that being a part of the Dean of Student office entails, the various Deans are constantly working on new ideas and programs to enhance student life at Drexel. This past year Dean Stellwagen headed a series of Anxiety Workshops for the general student body.

Dean Hallam works with leaders of the student organizations in Leadership Development Sessions. "It’s an effort to get students leaders together and help them to understand and develop leadership skills, group dynamics, budget building, and decision making processes," he explained. The people in the Dean of Students office are Drexel’s equivalent of an ambassador. "We’re problem solvers," says Hallam. "The Dean of Students office is prepared to help students with any problems they may have: academic, personal, or organizational in nature." A lot of "informal counseling" takes place, as Hallam puts it; many times a student just wants to talk to someone who is familiar with the college student experience.

Dean Hallam has a lot of ex-

Add and Drop

by Tim Fuhr

Making your own schedule is at the same time one of the advantages and hassles of college. You can add or drop for two reasons: because you want to or because you have to.

Your first confrontation with the add-drop problem may come on registration day when you get a look at your first schedule. Your God, what are these stars doing all over my roster, you think. Stars on your roster mean that you have a conflict and must add and drop at least one course.

During the first week of school, the schedule adjustment period, all you have to do is get the add and drop slips from your department office, which is where they will approve your schedule change. Then you make a trip to the Grand Hall in Creese Student Center to finalize your new choices. Just look for a huge mass of people standing around in a semblance of a line. Also make certain that you check the blackboard inside the Grand Hall to be sure that your new section is not already closed.

You also have the option to drop any course up to the seventh week of the term. First, you must get your professor to sign the drop slip that you have already acquired from your department office. This can sometimes be a hassle. "What do you mean you want to drop my course?" Just persevering until you reach your objective. Then you must return to your department office to get your department head’s signature.

After you have these two things, the rest is simple. Your Academic Dean is next on the list and this is hardly ever a problem. The last stop is the Registrar’s office on the first floor of the Main Building where your drop becomes official.

After going through all this most Drexel students make one more last stop - the Jailhouse, for some recuperation.

As a freshman, you are not eligible to be elected to Student Congress until Winter Term. However, you can become involved in Student Congress activities by signing up as an auxiliary member on various committees. These committees allow freshman and an interested upperclassmen to be active in the organization, but have no power to vote on passage of bills or initiate a motion to pass one. The types of committees you can join vary in function and there are more than enough activities going on to keep you interested and involved.

For instance, you can join the “Finding Out Committee”, which is a committee that plans and schedules a joint trip or activity (like a ski trip) with other colleges. Your input would involve making contacts at the other colleges or setting up the plans.

Another committee, the Freshman Register Committee, is organized especially for freshmen in order to get to know one another. The main activity in this committee is to output a yearbook for the freshmen only. By the end of their first academic year, the book would contain a picture of each freshman including his/her name, major, hobbies and name of neighborhood. An introduction to the in-campus student organizations would also be included to familiarize the freshman student with everything Drexel can offer you extracurricularly.

There are other committees such as the Survey Committee, the Elections Committee, and the Publicity Committee. You can join one of these if you want to be active in your Student Congress. Regardless, you are considering becoming a Congress member. For more info, stop by the Student Congress office on the third floor of the Educational Activities Center room 309. Congress will be tentatively scheduling a Student Congress Dance which all Drexel students (especially freshmen) are invited to. The dance will probably be on Oct 6 in the Grand Hall on EAC at 8 PM. The admission will be $1.00. All Freshmen are more than welcome to attend!

Freshmen can learn more about their Student Congress by attending any of their meetings. Chuck McGonigle, Student Congress President, extends a personal invitation to all freshmen or upperclassmen to attend one of the most special Congress meetings on Oct 9 at 7 PM on the 4th floor Long Range Congress objectives and special issues will be addressed, discussed and commented on by the Congress members and the administration.

From the President

Dear Freshmen,

The Student Congress would like to welcome the freshmen class officially by inviting them to the First Student Congress meeting on Tuesday, September 25, in the EAC. This is a chance for the freshmen to find out exactly how Drexel runs and about the vast opportunities available.

The Student Congress has a unique counterpart system in which each of the vice presidents has a counterpart. These counterparts are responsible in visiting the students concerns in major issues on campus. President Najgrey’s counterpart is myself. I am Chuck McGonigle and not only am I responsible to the President’s office, but also to you.

I feel that it is necessary to make you are aware of the fact that if you want change on campus, please feel free to come down to the office and voice your opinion. Also, if you want to get involved, we are always looking for help. I personally welcome you, and ask for your suggestions in the coming year. The Student Congress office is located in the Educational Activities Center, Room 309.

Thank you very much, and once again, welcome aboard.

Drexel's Korman Center: Ready to meet your challenge

by Mark Lipitz

Welcome to Drexel’s library. Before midterm exams come crashing down upon our heads (four or five weeks, at most), get acquainted with the library, which has a lot more to offer than just a quiet place to cram.

On the main floor, you’ll find a browsing area with current newspapers (from the Washington Post to Pravda) and magazines. Opposite the circulation desk are popular books and best-sellers.

On the lower level of the library is a lounge with vending machine and book-oops and best-sellers that you can borrow and use in the Typing Room. With a valid Drexel University ID, you can borrow books from the library for a period of three weeks. All current books, references, and most of the Science and Technology Division’s books upstairs are classified with the Library of Congress system, which uses “call numbers,” that begin with letters. An example is QA76.177. Older books and biographies use the Dewey classification system, which is used in most high school and public libraries. The two classification systems are filed together in the card catalogue. In the lower level, fiction and biography are shelved in separate areas. You can get a map which shows distribution of books for each floor at the circulation desk. For help in finding anything in the library, ask at the reference desk.

Tour of the library will be given on Sept 30, 27, 26, Oct 1, 2 at 10 a.m.; 2 p.m.; 4 p.m.; and 6 p.m. Those interested should meet in the Browsing Room on the main floor. The library will also be open on Sunday, Sept 29 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. We would like everyone to drop by. This could be an important part of your education, according to Reference Librarian Ruth Pagell.

Dormitory living: a real experience

Drexel has four dorms, each specified hours daily. You're finally out of high school and ready to swing out on your own. Welcome to the Drexel dorms, your new loading area for as long as you can stand it. Don't let first impressions prejudice you. There's nothing more bleak than an empty dorm room. I cried so loudly the first time I went into Kelly Hall that the RA ran running down to see if a stray cat had gotten caught in the elevator. But once you get your 100 sq. ft. of junk arranged in your 60 sq. ft. room, you'll feel right at home. Living in a dormitory is an experience like no other. So no matter how long or short a time you stay within the Residence Hall System, you'll leave with memories that will last longer than anything you learned in R001. Hopefully, they will be better ones too.

A dormitory is an ideal place to learn about life in general. You will learn about sharing, about compromise, about getting along with people who are usually available during your waking hours.

The New Residence Hall: “The Amazing Dorm”. The New Res is a pretty decent place to live if you can ever find a room. Show me a man who can go from room 301 to 263 in under an hour and I'll show you the architect of the building. I'm not trying to say that the place is laid out badly but if you're not careful once in there, you could spend five or ten years trying to find a way out. But seriously, the New Res has everything you could want in a dorm. Nice carpeting, kitchen space, great lounges, and even walls that aren't made of cinderblock. (Sigh) If only it had a name.

Now that I've taken you on a verbal tour through the dorms, I have just one last thing to say. Every floor or wing of every dorm has a Resident Assistant. Use your RA. Go to him/her whenever you have any kind of problem, question, suggestion or any other miscellaneous comment or concern. They are there to help you and they really want to get to know you. RA's who know, you might even like him.

A YEAR-BY-YEAR LOOK ADDS TO YOUR COLLEGE EDUCATION.

ARMY ROTC: A COLLEGE PROGRAM THAT TEACHES ADDERSHIP

ARMY ROTC is a program that helps you earn a 2nd Lieutenant’s commission at the same time you earn your regular college degree. So regardless of your chosen major, add Army ROTC, and you'll add leadership and management training to your college education.

Training that develops you into a leader of people as well as a manager of money and resources.

Training that also provides you with up to $1,000 a year for your last two years of ROTC.

The Army ROTC Four-Year Program is divided into two two-year courses: the Basic Course and the Advanced Course.

What's more, during your first and second years, you incur no military obligation.

So if you're starting college soon (or if you're already enrolled), take a closer look at what Army ROTC will add to your college experience.

ARMY ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS:

Each year Army ROTC awards hundreds of full- tuition, four-year scholarships, which can be used at 276 colleges and universities across the country. To win one, you must apply by December of your senior year of high school.

But even if you enroll in college, you can apply for either a three- or two-year Army ROTC scholarship. Just contact the Professor of Military Science on your campus hosting Army ROTC. (Another thing, all ROTC scholarships come with a four-year active duty obligation after graduation.)

YOUR FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE EQUATIONS:

The Army ROTC Basic Course begins now. During the week, along with your other courses, you'll attend Army ROTC classes. Your ROTC subjects will include military history; management principles and leadership development; and military customs, courtesy, and discipline. Subjects that will lay the foundation for you to become an Army officer.

ONCE A SEMESTER, TRY SOMETHING CHALLENGING

In Army ROTC, not all of your training takes place in the classroom. Some of it takes place in the field, too. Where you do something challenging. Like shooting the rapids. Or rappelling a cliff. Or finding your way through unfamiliar terrain, with nothing but a map and compass to guide you.

These are just a few of the challenging field activities you'll enjoy doing in Army ROTC.

YOUR JUNIOR-SENIOR YEARS: EARN UP TO $6000 A YEAR

In the Advanced Course, which is usually taken in the last two years of college, your studies will include advanced management and leadership techniques. You'll earn while you learn, too. Up to $1,000 a year for your last two years of ROTC.

During the summer between your junior and senior years, you'll attend our six-week Advanced Camp. Here, you'll practice in the field the leadership principles you've learned in the classroom.

You'll be in command at least once during Advanced Camp. And you'll be responsible for leading other ROTC cadets through a number of challenging situations. The kind that will build your stamina and develop your self-confidence.

And attending our Advanced Camp doesn't cost you anything. In fact, you'll be paid for the six weeks you're away.

TAKE ARMY ROTC AND SERVE PART TIME WITH THE ARMED RESERVE OR ARMY NATIONAL GUARD.

Now you can choose to serve on part-time duty as a 2nd Lieutenant with your nearest Army Reserve or Army National Guard unit, wherever you plan to locate after college. It's a good chance to get started in your civilian career while you also enjoy a nice extra income of over $1600 a year for the 16 hours a month (usually a weekend) and two weeks annual training that you serve with your unit.

GRADUATION: TWO BIG DAYS

Army ROTC makes graduation day two big days in one. Because it's the day you receive your commission as a second lieutenant in today's Army—which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard.

And it's the day you receive a college degree in your chosen major.

ARMY ROTC: IT'S WORTH A LOT TO YOU IN THE MILITARY AND OUT

More than one national leader or captain of industry started out as an Army ROTC lieutenant. So when we say your ROTC training can help with your career, we mean it. In the military. And out.

Over 70% of the commissioned second lieutenants in the active Army are ROTC graduates.

On the other hand, if you choose a civilian career, your training will give you the edge over the competition, because it tells an employer you're bringing more than just enthusiasm to the job. You're bringing solid experience in managing people, money, and supplies. And this will make you a valuable commodity in today's job market.

That's a brief look at the Army ROTC Four-Year Program. Year by year. Step by step. From beginning to end.

If you'd like an even closer look at what Army ROTC adds to your college education, call CAPT Greiling at 895-2590 or visit the Military Science Dept. in Bldg. 28.

Getting around Philly... without a car

Almost all of the local public transit in Philadelphia is operated by the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority, better known to natives as SEPTA. Under SEPTA's jurisdiction are the city and suburban bus, trolley (yes folks, we still have trolleys), subway, and rail networks.

The fare on all city vehicles is $0.50 and each transfer to another vehicle is a nickel.

Also under the joint supervision of SEPTA and Conrail are the 14 commuter rail lines.

To the uninitiated Drexel student, however, the public transit system in the metropolitan Philadelphia area can be confusing, if not downright awesome. But do not despair, getting to the popular historical, cultural and entertainment attractions as well as popular night spots, restaurants and department stores is not as difficult as you may think. Starting with places to the north relative to City Hall and going counter-clockwise:

- The Zoo and Robin Hood Bells
  - Rt. 31 bus north to Girard. Rt. 11 trolley east to 30th St.
  - Tower Theater
  - Market St. Subway (El) west to 60th St. end of line.

- The Spectrum, Veterans' and J.K. Stadiums
  - The El east to 10th St. and transfer to the Broad St. subway south to Pattison Ave. end of line.
  - The Parkway Area and Center City Art Museum, Franklin Inst., Shubert Theater, Free Library, etc.
  - The El east to 10th St. (All are within walking distance from station)
  - Wannamakers and City Hall Tower
  - The El to 13th St.
  - Chinatown and Reading Terminal
  - The El to 11th St.
  - The Gallery, Strawbridge and Clothier, and Steam
  - The El to 8th St.

- Independence Mall and the Liberty Bell
  - The El to 16th St.

- Other City, Penn's Landing, and Newmarket
  - The El to 2nd St.

This is only a partial list but it is a good start. Good luck this term and have fun!

Tips for Transfer Students

by Mia Beattie

Last year when I started Drexel as a transfer student, I used to go around in a daze. Things just seemed to be so many things that were new and different, and so many well learned rules didn’t apply anymore. I remember wondering whether it was more difficult to go when I have a problem or a question that needed to be answered, or whether there was enough help on the way in Drexel’s social life.

Many transfer students find themselves in a similar situation when they first come to Drexel. This is the fact that nothing seems to be arranged exclusively for their benefit, white the red carpet is being rolled out for the freshmen. This doesn’t help matters much. However, I have discovered that Drexel’s administrators are not unaware of the problems faced by the new transfers and have tried to come up with solutions. Also, the transfer students who have been at Drexel for some time are more than willing to give the new transfers the benefit of their own experiences.

According to Dean Hallahan, Drexel’s Dean of Students, adjusting to the quarter system at Drexel is one of the biggest problems encountered by new transfers. Many transfers who are used to the semester system are not prepared for the pressures and anxieties that go along with the quarter system. Also, students who come from colleges where the academic program is much less strenuous than here have difficulty coping with tensions that a different standard of education can produce.

Besides having problems adjusting to a new academic environment, many transfer students encounter problems adjusting socially. In fact, Ann Botel, Bernard Hallanan’s advisor to the Transfer Student Committee, points out that the problem of social adjustment is one that has the most impact on the transfer student. The reason behind this is that the feeling of isolation that they experience remains with them long after other problems have been ironed out. They want to make new friends, but do not know how to go about it; for at the time they come into the picture, most friendships have already been formed and the atmosphere is not conducive to the setting up of new friendships.

Ms. Botel’s Bernard’s advice to you, if you find yourself in such a situation is to get involved in as many activities as possible or join some of Drexel’s organizations, so that you get a chance to meet a lot of people and get into the right kind of groups.

Clearly, the primary need of transfer students is to be able to deal with any problems that may emerge. Another good strategy would be to get hold of the Student Handbook and the Undergraduate Bulletin. Copies of the former are available in the Dean of Students Office and copies of the latter can be gotten from the Admissions office or the Registrar. A copy of this Freshmen Issue would also come in handy. All these publications provide useful information about the University and the facilities that are available to you.

We hope that things go smoothly for you in this term and the terms to come and that you find it worthwhile and interesting to become a part of the Drexel community. Good Luck!

A lot of big corporations offer you a big title. But how many offer a young college graduate a really important job? As a Navy Officer, you don’t have to wait to do a job that counts. We give you one as soon as you’ve earned your commission. A job with responsibility for the lives of others, and for millions of dollars of complex equipment. A job that requires skill and leadership. A job that Navy Officers have been doing proudly for 200 years. It’s what being a Navy Officer is all about.

Parking-In the Garage or ...

If you are planning on driving to school there are many factors that you should consider before you do so. Not only will you have to worry about traffic jams and crazy drivers but the cost of driving is higher now than ever before. Once you overcome these obstacles and arrive on campus you will have to find a place to park.

Parking will be tighter than ever, claimed Ed Smith, Director of Safety and Security, in a statement that he has repeated from one year to the next.

Drexel has about 750 off-street parking spaces in the Parking Garage at 34th and Market, and at other lots scattered about the campus. The garage is the best bet if you have to stay more than four or five hours in one day. Entrance and exit can only be obtained by a token (one each way) which can be purchased in the lobby of the garage, one for sixty or eight for $5.00.

Entrance to the garage is off of Ludlow St., which is just below Market. There is free admission to the lot after 4:30 P.M. everyday. A penalty of $1.95 will be assessed in any car left in the garage overnight. It is open from 7 A.M. to 11 P.M. and is closed on weekends and holidays. Gate cards may be purchased for $50 per term and allow an unlimited number of trips in and out of the garage during that period of time.

There are three metered lots that are close to the center of the campus. You will only be here a few hours a day, your best bet is the lot off of 33rd St. next to the Korman Center (a.k.a. the Library). One quarter will get you one full day of parking in this lot. However, it fills up very quickly every day.

There is also a metered lot behind the Creese Student Center off of 32nd St. The same quarter will only give you as minutes in this lot. Another parking lot, with 50 spaces is located behind the Educational Activities Center off of 33rd St. The rates there are one quarter per hour.

Materials not complying to the rules will be fined if they are parked over the time limit. Up to one hour over the limit, you will be fined $10. From one to three hours, $20 will be charged. Over this, your car will be towed by Integrity Towing Service who recently moved to 6th and Pпущ St. Not only will you have to go to this place, but it will cost you $30 to retrieve your car, of which Smith added, "Drexel doesn't get a nickel out of tow-aways."

There is also limited on-street parking. Most streets prohibit parking during rush hours (7-9 A.M. and 4-6 P.M.), so you may be a few minutes late for classes if you park there. The hours on Chestnut St. were recently changed to 9:30 A.M., so don't park there before that time, or you will pay the consequences.

Since Chestnut St. is a major artery in the morning, the traffic laws are strictly enforced. Even if you are sitting in your car at 9:25, chances are that you will get a ticket. Philadelphia tickets are $25 a shot. After two of them, it would almost pay to buy a term pass. If your car is ticketed and is not removed soon, there is a strong possibility that it will be towed.

There are some streets that have no time restrictions. They are Market, Lancaster, Ludlow, and Race. However parking spaces disappear very quick.

There are certain places in the dormitory area where the city is enforcing tickets vigorously. The fire lane that runs between Kelly Hall and The New Residence Hall must be kept clear; otherwise, emergency vehicles would not have access to this area. Also, parking is prohibited on the pavements of Cherry St. and Cumberland St.

* Motorcycles * Free

Free motorcycle parking is available in the alley behind Cavanaugh's lot, off of Ludlow St. behind 31st. Cycles parked on the pavement here, or anywhere else on campus, will be ticketed.

* Carpools *

Students interested in forming car pools should contact the Commuter Coalition in room 3025 EAC. The coalition may also be reached by phoning 895-2572.
Security Is Your Business

Even though Drexel is considered to be safe for an urban campus, there are several precautions that you should take so that you are not a victim of crime. Security must be a state of mind as well as a physical presence that protects your safety, according to Security Director, Ed Smith. Put simply, a common sense attitude toward security is your best protection.

Lock Doors

The security department is constantly checking to see how many doors are left unlocked around campus. This is being done for a good reason. By simply locking your door every time you leave or come in, you make it a lot harder for a thief to get in.

This is particularly important in the dormitories. There have been incidents where students left their room for a few minutes only to find a stereo, calculator, books, radio or camera equipment missing when they returned. Watch out for this type of rip-off at the beginning of the term, and in particular, this weekend.

When you are in the library, and even in your classrooms, keep an eye on your books and calculator. These items are very easy for a thief to take, provided he has the opportunity. By simply a common sense attitude toward security, don’t hesitate to call, even though the service often proves to be sluggish.

The Dragon Wagon (blue truck) is better off with you near the dorms, on or near 32nd street. If you plan to drive to school or park near the dorms, try to keep all doors locked and all windows rolled up. You should keep a car on campus, make sure to keep all doors locked and all windows rolled up. You should park near the dorms, try to avoid parking on or near 32nd street. If you do park in an undesirable location, check your car a couple of times a day to see if it is still there.

If you own an auto cassette player, try to park your car near the dorms, but only to find a stereo, calculator. These items are very easy for a thief to take, provided he has the opportunity. By simply a common sense attitude toward security, don’t hesitate to call, even though the service often proves to be sluggish.

Evening Travel

If you need to travel from one part of the campus to another late at night, call security at 895-2222 for their escort service. Smith explains that this is the primary security service offered to Drexel students.

The escort service, which is comprised of the two security cars, only run when the Dragon Wagon doesn’t (see schedule). The guards driving the cars are under obligation to drive you to your home provided that it is near the campus or 30th street. Don’t hesitate to call, even though the service often proves to be sluggish.

The Dragon Wagon (blue truck) is under the blue school sign near the infirmary. It is the most popular places in the area. A campus radio phone was recently installed so that, in effect, there are three vehicles around campus which is being done for a good reason. By simply locking your door every time you leave or come in, you make it a lot harder for a thief to get in.

Hints for Successful Studying

If there is one thing you’re going to have to become familiar with at Drexel, it’s studying. Everyone goes through academically successful periods of a greatly expanded amount of time studying. But making sure you are the best student is the one who works out a method for spending the minimum amount of time with the maximum amount of efficiency, thereby freeing up time for pursuing other interests at Drexel. So, if you plan to party or be extremely social, now’s your chance to earn that extra free time.

The Place

Of primary importance is the area that you are going to work in. Using a little forethought can eliminate this problem. Find a place where you are comfortable with the noise level and the atmosphere. If you feel you can study comfortably, then you’ve taken the first step in establishing your study habits.

Many a slacker does not exist in your dorm room or at home, then there are several places on campus that you might consider. The dorm lounges when there are no students living in there, are a good refuge. Shabbat Hall, which is available for students, with a pass from their department, also has many lounges, classrooms, and study areas that can be good havens. The library of course, offers all of the typical library advantages. There are study carrels glassed in for college students in the basement of the library, as well as plenty of scattered tables and desks. The EX/S/C/S complex which is open fairly late and was weekend hours, also has many rooms and lounges that can be used as study havens. Also, the Newman Center has an excellent library that is much quieter than the main library.

The Work

The selection should be made so that you are using equipment that you are comfortable with. It is also worth noting that a selection of pencils, pens, felt tip, rulers, and erasers ready to be used. The recent proliferations of calculators is great if you’re handy with them. We remind you that calculators are not allowed by certain professors during exams the University policy as it is up to the individual professor to decide.

Methodology

There are two schools of thought on studying; those who believe in individual study, and those who believe in group studying. Most people choose to use a combination of both methods.

Studying by yourself is usually more flexible but is is only for those students who can pass up a partying order to put some studied hours in. It allows a varied schedule and more freedom to attend social and organizational activities.

By all means, discover a system which works for you. And do it now - during the first week of the term. Usually a combination of two or all three of these methods is best for you. But no system works unless you use it – so use it.

You know your in college when

- your professor talks perfect English for an hour and you didn't understand a word he said.
- your professor doesn't speak a word of English for an hour and you understand what he said.
- your friends stop discussing how to make cherry bombs and start discussing how to make ston bombs...that just might work.
- your professor picks you for your personal犹如 of Greek letters.
- your professor covers a blackboard with a single equation and you know what it means.
- your little brother asks you to help him do his high school math homework and you can't figure out how to solve the problem without integrating.
- you get back at your parents by asking them to check your homework.
- you realize you have had math courses for the past 3 terms and haven't seen a number yet.
- you begin to realize that things like not being able to integrate the hallways of the Main building because they are discontinuous and the riddle, "What do you get when you cross an elephant and a pickle?" are supposed to be jokes. Anna: elephant pickle sine theta. (you realize why jokes like the above aren't funny for the right reasons.
- the words of graffiti in the bathroom either have four letters or twenty-five.

Engineering and Science. Steve Bernstein, the assistant director, has prepared a definitive treatise of help which is available to freshmen. It lists where to go for additional help in biology, chemistry, computer programming, mathematics, and physics. The Center itself is open to all students eight hours a day on a drop-in basis. They hold group sessions for major freshman courses. Basic background courses as well as college material are covered. Next to the Act II office is the Personalized Instruction Center (PIC). The PIC helps students with weak math backgrounds and gives diagnostic tests along with cassette tapes and workbooks to help in building skills.

For other help in math, a high-caliber study aid is the Math and Computer Tutoring Center located at 313 Commonwealth Hall. Here students in the math honors society are available on a drop-in basis.

Residents can find assistance in any of the dormitories. Each dorm has at least one tutor who schedules fifteen about fifteen hours per week during which they can be contacted for help. In addition to holding review sessions before exams, they work with the department heads and get teaching aids from them. They also maintain an extensive test file. While these sessions are set up primarily for residents, commuters are always welcome.

1979-80 Theater Season Promises Diversity

By Janet Aaron

The 1979-80 Philadelphia theater season promises an alluring diversity of both new and established plays and musicals. There is truly something for everyone.

The largest difficulty a student is likely to encounter is finding the time to sneak away from the library and into the theater long and often enough to go to everything he would like to see. Most theaters offer some charming establishments with distinctive characters all for their own. There are a lot of theaters in Philadelphia, but the suburbs offer a last minute offering. For the latter, the suburban theaters promise the "Neatracker Suite" during the holiday season.

The FORREST currently offers Hunter's "Oklahoma," with the original choreographer Agnes de Mille. Hungarian company stars Brian Bedford and opens after Oklahoma leaves on October 6. It is followed by The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, with Alexis Smith and choreographer Tommy Tune. Tommy Tune's Broadway hit Dallas arrives in mid-December, and 1980 brings Neil Simon's Chapter Two, also a successful New York show. On February 29th, Who's Life Is It Anyway, the story of a paralyzed sculptor's right to die, is slated for a month-long run. The long-awaited Philadelphia premier of Annie is scheduled for April.

WALNUT STREET THEATER One of the best offerings of the season is the one woman show Miss Margarida's Way, with Estelle Parsons, from September 23rd. October 21 in Henry's Daughter, a speaking portrait of Elizabeth I. It is followed by the world premiere of an American story of the Civil rights movement, The Last Few Days of Willie Miller.

THE PHILADELPHIA DRAMA GUILD's production begins in November with G. B. Shaw's You Never Can Tell. Christmas week, the mime fantasy Mummenschantz is performed. Followed in January by the PIG production of the Hugh Leonard's (author of "Da") drama Summer. In February it's Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, and the British farce, Thank, in March. In May, Da' is slated, with its Tony award winning star Bernard Hughes.

MISCELLANEOUS: Sugar Babies is a revival of the burlesque musical, and stars the effervescent Ann Miller, the last of the glamorous girls, with Mickey Rooney in top along with her. It's at the Shubert now through the 25th. Your Arms Too Short To Box With God, the exuberant gospel musical enjoyed by all, returns from Sept. 23rd on the Locust. At a smaller theater, Players and Players presents Tom Taylor's one man show about the life and songs of Woody Guthrie. He performed at the White House while scheduled at Ford's Theater earlier this year, runs through October 20.

Philadelphia: A Rock club heaven?

by Frank Omilalekwa

Is there a rock 'n' roll nightlife in Philadelphia? Well, it's relative. Philly makes New York City look like rock club heaven! It could be said, but it definitely ranks in the U.S. as one of the top 10 rock cities, with some of the others. Our scene most likely does not compare with those mentioned. Nevertheless, Philly's rock scene keeps me busy, tired, and broke. And off the Dean's List. No matter!

Being intimate, band members work their way through the crowd to get to the stage. And as the physical spectacle stage front is just a few elbow length away. Other Hot Club prices include a liquor license, and a juke box. Photography is quite schizophrenic in the English pubs. Where else can you hear Plastic Bertrand, the Sex Pistols, Sam the Sham (remember them), Wreckless Eric, the Jam, Ramones, Patti Smith's cover of "My Generation," or Alberto Ybarra.

Philadelphia's radio scene is diverse enough to appeal to a wide range of tastes. Album oriented rock (A.O.R., disco, Top 40 soul, talk shows and countless other formats are well represented in the Delaware Valley.

In the first place, Philadelphia is no longer known as being a leader in progressive programming, but it still has the three major A.O.R. stations WMMR (93.3), an early pioneer in progressive radio, is the city's most popular A.O.R. station. WYSP (94) and WQK (106) trail behind. At one time WMMR was instrumental in breaking new artists in the Delaware Valley. Two in particular, Bowie and Springsteen, were area favorites long before they gained national acceptance as a result of WMMR's aggressiveness. Unfortunately, top 40, commercial and competitive considerations, Philly has lost its edge and all three stations tend to follow national trends instead of taking risks. Never mind. I always hope for the unknown. It is not uncommon to hear the same song on two stations simultaneously. Yet music, on Fridays to A.M. - 2 P.M. From what I hear through the grapevine, additional New Wave acts may air on WQKU this fall. Thus WQKU is student run, why not stop down?

Summer Concert Season Streaks By

by Tim Feller, Russ Laff, and Jeff Shea

The summer of ’79 saw an exciting series of concerts make its way to the City of Brotherly Love. In addition to the usual line-up of super groups, three acts made rare appearances this summer.

The first of these was Supertramp, whose long-standing number one album Breakfast in America, created an easy sellout beyond an already anxious crowd. Material from their current release, their previous LP, Even in the Quiescent Moments, and hits from their first two LP’s were presented in rich textured layers, complemented by a handsome light show. The sound was well balanced and the volume was at a discernable level, so all the conversation before the songs was appreciated for its wit and humor. It was an intimate, astounding evening, providing speculation that Supertramp was to be one of the summer’s hottest tours.

The Spectrum sold out over seventy-five percent of its concerts, and R&B Company was one of a bumper crop. Their show was far below expectations musically, but nothing can put down “Red Goa” good moments overall. It was a disappointing show when it should have been one of the real rockers in radio picks of the season.

The Robin Hood Dell West, which somewhere along the line has been redubbed The Frederick Mann Center, does not, as a rule, provide pop concerts at any other time than the summer. When it’s nice to know a concentrated amount of fine music awaits us when that season comes around. Featured performers included America, ten fellows once a trio who offered their audience almost exclusively new music, while virtually ignoring the hit songs that made them famous.

With a back-up band that was more than adequate, the group leaned a little too precariously on the electric guitar, paying much less attention to the acoustic selections the people cried for. Three-quarters of the famed sixty’s band, The Byrds, have regrouped in the seventies under the auspices of McGuinn, Clark and Hillman. They pleased a Dell crowd with current material such as “Surrender To Me” and “Don’t You Write Her Off” as well as a medley of sixties hits. The Kinks, a sixties leftover and a real sleeper, created the second peak in the Spectrum agenda. The Davies brothers set up incredible energy, going through “Lola,” “You Really Got Me,” “Sunny Afternoon,” and some good tracks from their latest album, Low Budget, including a rocked version of “Superman.” Ray Davies even survived falling off the stage to the classic: “All Of The Day And All Of The Night.”

Not far from the Philly suburbs (Ambler, Pa.), the Temple University Music Fair hosted the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra with guest conductors and soloists as well as conservative middle-of-the-road artists.

Joan Baez, an ever political, musical artist played the Fair in July and teased. “I have nothing against the bourgeoisie,” when many didn’t recognize her Dylan impression in “Love Is Just A Four Letter Word.”

In telling the story of her songs, she engrossed the crowd with two sets of her true vocals and acoustic guitar accompaniment. Her selections ranged a broad spectrum from topical historical ballads and love songs, to singing traditional arrangements. It was a non-image completely, completely captivating evening.

Hack in South Philly, a historically fantastic jazz concert was taking place on Thursday, July 26. They performed old favorites rather than totally plugging their current LP. Tormante. The stage show was

by Mary A. Green

Philadelphia is not a complicated city to get around in but trying to find certain things in stores you might have a problem. The following list of stores is to help make your shopping journey a little bit easier.

Downtown center - city is the most common place to go shopping. It is simply an "L" step away.

- The Galleries: This shopping mall is located at 9th and Market Sts. On the 9th St side is Gimbel's and on the 8th St side is Strawbridge's. These two stores are connected by the Gallery Inside Strawbridge's. The two stores are Gimbel's and Strawbridge's, men's shoe stores, fast food stores, a camera shop, ice cream parlor, and gift shops.

These shops are not expensive, most are reasonably priced. To name a few of the stores: Brooks, a woman shoe store. The flag, men and women's clothing, specialty wigs, pants, shoes, sneakers, fast food stores, a camera shop, ice cream parlor, and gift shops.

As with many department stores, the budget items are in the basement. These things in the stores were up to date two weeks ago, but since then have been marked down. Shopping in the basement doesn't say you're cheap, it just says you're getting a bargain. As always, watch for sales signs above special items.

John Wanamaker's: Located at 6th and Market Sts. Including shoes, socks, stockings, coats, and suits. The prices in Wanamaker's are cheaper than Gimbel's or Strawbridge's. The quality is about the same.

Other stores in Philadelphia are:

- Favo's: 120 Chester St. and also at 60th and Market Sts. This store has a wide variety of shoes, men's and women's. They are not expensive, and they are in style. This store gives you the feeling of a factory outlet. There are shoes all over the place and you have the opportunity to choose from whatever you want, without the help of a salesperson.

Woodworth's: 13th and Chestnut Sts. and 11th and Market. This store is full of almost anything you might need, whether it is for your bathroom, bedroom, kitchen or serving room. It has food, clothes, material, photo equipment, etc. This is a stop and go store. People who come here usually know what they want ahead of time. Woodworth's is generally open later than other stores, to assure you that you get what you need.

- Goldberger's: 932 Chestnut St.

Gimbel's is full of the necessary equipment for hiking, traveling, sports and most of all school. Everything here is basic, there is nothing high-fashioned. Men and women's, jeans, and shirts are sold, as well as men's shoes and boots. Jackets, coats, shoes, scarves, and all other winter things are sold here. Prices are quite reasonable, especially during their sales when you can pick up a pair of jeans for us little as five or six dollars.

- The Void

by Gary M. Kraus

My ears were inflamed with a deafening roar as I plunged into the naked abyss. I grasped the slimy rails as I cautiously entered the dank concrete tunnel, realizing that I was being swept into a river of struggling, sweating, screaming bodies. My heart raced as I knew: struggling in horror, that there was no turning back or fighting. I must submit to the torments of the Subway Chamber.

The bare walls screamed at my ears, a thousand reverberations of visions of 'Mr. Hunt', 'Mr. Blunt', flashed before my eyes, a kaleidoscope of holographs somehow holding my fate, if I only knew. The Subway, the epitome of Man's existence, a self-made nightmare, the four of the unknown, the tunnels, just beyond the shadows, the rats, scurrying across the trash-stained tracks, the beautiful creature.

"I am Trexilla. I come from the world of light," she said, her voice soft but firm, "I can help you. I am from the Commuter Coalition. I've been sent to guide you.

I stared at her, dumbfounded. "The Credit Commuter Coalition?"

"Yes. You see, many years ago, we were forced down here, and were helpless. Then we banded together to help one another escape. Come, we will go to the headquarters. There are others who wait for you."

"Where is that?" I asked hesitantly.

She pointed. "Up there. In a fortress called EAC 2050.

"What will we do there?"

"We will teach you the ways of the escape routes. You must learn how to beat your travel through the system, always keeping alternate plans in case the first one fails. We will show you how to bribe the masters of the SEPTA, who demand 'a' for entry to their corridors. You must ride the great beasts, always being aware of your position in space. You will never be able to transfer to other routes, for a smaller tribute. You can learn of the tokens, which save you nothing in money, but a life."

"If you are far away from the headquarters, you can call the code 895-4532. Let us go now."

She touched my hand warmly. I had one last involuntary shiver, then followed her into the darkness.

New Music Department head wants flexibility

By Karl Schroeder

The Music Department at Drexel offers an opportunity for students to participate in about 10 performing groups. The department also offers an equal number of courses that students of any curriculum can enroll in.

The three primary groups are chamber and women’s glee clubs, which are under the direction of Dr. Howard Hasen, and the band and orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Clyde Shive. The Gospel Singers, Madrigal Singers and Varsity Singers are composed of select groups from the glee clubs. Other instrumental groups include the Jazz ensemble, which is under the direction of Wayne Guttenlein, and the Colonial Ensemble.

The idea here is to have a music program for the enrichment of the students,” according to Dr. Alfred Blatter, the recently appointed Department Head of Music. He pointed out that since Drexel is not a conservatory where we are training professionals, a possibility to deviation from traditional choir and band music exists.

Blatter explained that “the music programs have to exist only if students want to participate.” Therefore, if you need five Gospel bands, we will have five Gospel bands;

If you are interested in participating in any of the groups, you must go to the music registration on Tuesday, September 25 at 3:30 in the Mandell Theater. The glee clubs and band have rehearsals on Tuesdays at 3:30, with some special rehearsals throughout the week.

The Jazz Ensemble meets Tuesday evening at 7, while the concert choir meets on Thursdays at 7. The Orchestra meets up every Monday evening, at 7.

If you cannot meet at any of those times, see Dr. Blatter in room 302 of the EAC.

The Dean of Students Office can also be of assistance. The University of Pennsylvania also has a bulletin board on the third floor of Houston Hall, 36th and Spruce. All apartment hunting should be done about two months prior to the date of moving to insure that you have the apartment.

Because of its close proximity to Drexel, the Powelton Village area has become the choice spot for a large portion of Drexel apartment hunters. Powelton Village is defined as being north of Lancaster Ave., west of 32nd St., and south of Spring Garden St. The average price of a one bedroom apartment in this area is $300 per month.

There are several considerations to be made before you get bumped into believing that you are going to get an apartment. Can you really afford it? Perhaps a roommate would help cope with the cost, but can you get along with a certain person for a prolonged time. You must also ask yourself, can I afford the initial cost of a security deposit, which is usually one month’s rent, plus the first month’s rent and a deposit for the phone?

When you finally decide which apartment you like, you must deal with the contract. You will be best off if you contact ROACH when it comes to interpreting the contract. If the landlord says he is going to do something, make sure it is in the contract, or else he is not obligated to do so. Pay attention to leases with typewritten clauses since most are preprinted.

Last but not necessarily least, if the apartment is furnished, no sweat. If the apartment is not furnished, you can pick up some cheap furniture at various thrift shops, garage sales, and through the classified ads in newspapers. One last hint for a good start, make sure the utilities are turned in before you move, or else you will become emulated after the first week.

New Music Department head wants flexibility

By Karl Schroeder

The Music Department at Drexel offers an opportunity for students to participate in about 10 performing groups. The department also offers an equal number of courses that students of any curriculum can enroll in.

The three primary groups are chamber and women’s glee clubs, which are under the direction of Dr. Howard Hasen, and the band and orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Clyde Shive. The Gospel Singers, Madrigal Singers and Varsity Singers are composed of select groups from the glee clubs. Other instrumental groups include the Jazz ensemble, which is under the direction of Wayne Guttenlein, and the Colonial Ensemble.

The idea here is to have a music program for the enrichment of the students,” according to Dr. Alfred Blatter, the recently appointed Department Head of Music. He pointed out that since Drexel is not a conservatory where we are training professionals, a possibility to deviation from traditional choir and band music exists.

Blatter explained that “the music programs have to exist only if students want to participate.” Therefore, if you need five Gospel bands, we will have five Gospel bands;

If you are interested in participating in any of the groups, you must go to the music registration on Tuesday, September 25 at 3:30 in the Mandell Theater. The glee clubs and band have rehearsals on Tuesdays at 3:30, with some special rehearsals throughout the week.

The Jazz Ensemble meets Tuesday evening at 7, while the concert choir meets on Thursdays at 7. The Orchestra meets up every Monday evening, at 7.

If you cannot meet at any of those times, see Dr. Blatter in room 302 of the EAC.

The Dean of Students Office can also be of assistance. The University of Pennsylvania also has a bulletin board on the third floor of Houston Hall, 36th and Spruce. All apartment hunting should be done about two months prior to the date of moving to insure that you have the apartment.

Because of its close proximity to Drexel, the Powelton Village area has become the choice spot for a large portion of Drexel apartment hunters. Powelton Village is defined as being north of Lancaster Ave., west of 32nd St., and south of Spring Garden St. The average price of a one bedroom apartment in this area is $300 per month.

There are several considerations to be made before you get bumped into believing that you are going to get an apartment. Can you really afford it? Perhaps a roommate would help cope with the cost, but can you get along with a certain person for a prolonged time. You must also ask yourself, can I afford the initial cost of a security deposit, which is usually one month’s rent, plus the first month’s rent and a deposit for the phone?

When you finally decide which apartment you like, you must deal with the contract. You will be best off if you contact ROACH when it comes to interpreting the contract. If the landlord says he is going to do something, make sure it is in the contract, or else he is not obligated to do so. Pay attention to leases with typewritten clauses since most are preprinted.

Last but not necessarily least, if the apartment is furnished, no sweat. If the apartment is not furnished, you can pick up some cheap furniture at various thrift shops, garage sales, and through the classified ads in newspapers. One last hint for a good start, make sure the utilities are turned in before you move, or else you will become emulated after the first week.

Eating alternatives

by Bonnie Pursel

For a fun weekend trip, visit from London's 3 and try a make a trip across the street to Newmarket (Auditorium Mall) to taste through its unique stores. When you are tired of sightseeing and shopping and want finds not one of the many restaurants. Once Upon a Porch is terrific for an informal dinner, nice lunch, or great for ice cream.

The entire restaurant has a pleasant though somewhat crowded setting with small round tables set close to each other. The best spots are on the porch - a porch taken from an old house and rebuilt at the back of the restaurant. The Porch is best known for its large ice cream sundae (around $0.99) and worth it but its ham usually (quite good). I had an order of the mac and cheese which was rich, milkay, and delicious. The salad bar had a variety of choices and the soups were hot and filling. A must for food lovers, Salad Alley offers standard Italian fare. The food is cheap, edible, but not very exciting. Pagani's Pizzeria at 3rd and Chestnut offers the usual pizza and sandwiches but it also has a selection of Prime Rib or steak dinners. The food is a little better than some, but the prime rib is a little higher than at other local places.

For a later impression-year-partique date in the same area (Newmarket Square), try out Kung Fu Pancakes which is a Korean restaurant in the Benihana style where the chef cooks your meal right in front of you with many a flourish and juggling act. Kung Fu offers delicious food and entertainment for about $10 each. (not cheap but good for that special occasion)

Closer to home, Drexel Pizza at 22nd and Chestnut offers standard Italian fare. The food is cheap, edible, but not

Drinking out

I Like the Nightlife, Baby

by Tim Furt

Bars can be found anywhere in the Philadelphia vicinity, and the number of them you will find that you feel comfortable. But bars are like restaurants to different people. While you may find that you want a particular type of drink at a particular time, you generally want some kind of live music or entertainment. Participation provides this to some extent, but if you are looking for something a bit more casual and socially easy, there are a variety of nightclubs in the Philadelphia area that span a wide range of experiences.

What follows is a small summary of some of the best clubs within reasonable distance. I don't pretend that it is a complete list by any means, but it should be enough to keep you occupied for quite a while.

Downtown Philadelphia

The News Stand Centre Square (11th and Market; The Gallery, 11th and Market). I've never been to the News Stand, but its Centre Square counterparts provides many attractions. A relaxed downtown all night except Mondays, when they present some of the best jazz in the city, Elegant, but relatively informal.

The Borgia Cafe - Headhouse Square. 2nd and Pine Sts. The blue JAZZ sign in Headhouse Jazz on most nights. Chatty and very expensive, but a little classical music, wine and cheese never hurt anyone. If you do decide to go here, bring your stereo.

The Long March Coffeehouse, 11th St. 823-738. Jazz and all kinds of non-commercial music and events. Very bohemian with a cool charge on weekends. Jazz bands advertised on 11th St. to raise money for the club. A small showcase club which features live folk, rock and jazz performances.

Biju's Cafe 1400 Lombard St. 775-444
A very popular concert spot and deservedly so. Famous for its intense personal folk, rock and jazz shows and for a couple of live albums. Reservations recommended.

The Khyber Pass 2nd and Chestnut Sts. Terse and a good place to catch some folk or jazz. Not too expensive with a small cover charge. A good place to just drop in on.

Grendel's 5th and South
Local bands appear during the week with some pleasant surprises. An informal scene on the weekends and also a showcase theatre. A new upstairs restaurant that presents a proper amount of good folk, rock and jazz.

The Carpet Club - 2nd and South
Locally named and South
Occasionally features some good jazz. Excellent and usually packed to the max on weekends.

Rock's Cabaret 527 S. Front St. 3903-1895
Good live jazz nightly and some excellent French cuisine.

J.C. Dobbs 3rd and South
I've never been in Dobbs but from what I've heard it seems like a good bet. Their musical acts are varied and it usually sounds as if everyone is having a great time.

Northwest Philadelphia

Guthrie's Susquehanna and Old York Rd. (611) 884-4407
Local bands appear during the week and during breaks between classes there is a good chance you will see students and professors there. On Friday and Saturday nights you can also find a very good comedy show for a small cover charge. The variety of beer is not that great but the price is reasonable.

The Khyber Pass 2nd and Chestnut Sts.
The Khyber Pass is a Philadelphia institution. You generally want some kind of live music and events. Very eclectic with all kinds of folk, rock, jazz and classical performance.

John and Peter's, Main St., New Hope
All New Hope clubs are impossible to miss as it is such a small, concentrated town. A music house on the river that presents a fair amount of good folk, rock and jazz.

Havana, Main St., New Hope
A small, glass enclosed room of the main bars, offers food, drink and jazz.

Franks Pub, Main St., New Hope
More of a bar than a club, but occasionally featuring an old time, pull all the stops jazz band. Good cheap drinks.

The Canal House - 2nd and South
Beautiful wooden bar graces the interior of the Khyber Pass. Their selection of beers are the highest around. There are a couple of other bars in the area which are definitely advisable to check out. A great place to escape to from the regular watering hole of mine, the house of beer.

Miss Hadley's Wine Bar 39th St.
This is upstairs from the Khyber Pass and is a nice place to impress a date. You might not be able to become a regular member, but the prices are cheaper than the others. The Khyber Pass main point is the live music which occurs every night with a minimal charge of $5. You can have a good time here, but it is not that great and the beer is reasonable.

The Jug

Philadelphia's Stars and Bars

by Chris Holman and Francine Dennis

O'Hara's, 13th and Walnut

A saloon with one of the better eating establishments. The drinks are slightly more expensive than most but still reasonable. There are a couple of pool tables and a slightly older crowd. O'Hara's has claimed to serve up the best Irish Coffee in the city.

Chin's, 2nd and Rittenhouse

Next to Stars, this converted carriage house features two dance floors and several lounge areas. In colder weather, working fire places warm your spirits while two bars assure of waiting for drinks. Downtown's Silver Ceiling restaurant serves gourmet meals at gourmet prices. Dress conservatively here, everyone else does.

The Bull, 16th and Chestnut

The Bull is a nice, no-pressure bar that some times gets going at night. The drinks are always reasonable with periodic specials which are definitely advisable to check out. A good place to have a light or serious conversation.

Carmen's, 16th and Chestnut St.
A nice place to drink with the usual college crowd. The only problem is that when they want it close, they're closed and your pitcher is gone. The sandwiches are good for the price, however.

when the building is primarily used for student extracurricular activities.

If you are paying for your courses by the credit hour, the going rate is $10. This rate is applied to special students, students taking over 20 credits per term and students taking courses while on co-op.

If you are in this situation, and you drop one or more courses, you are entitled to a refund. Tuition credits are good for one year after the term for which they are granted. The amount of the refund is determined by the value assigned to each term. A co-op term is worth $250, while the value of a class term is tuition and fee paid. Use the $250 for each co-op term, divided by the number of class terms.

The Spectrum

The Spectrum, at Broad and Patterson, is primarily geared toward adolescents. 20,000 kids may be packed into its confines and the usual Heavy Metal crowd totally ruins any sense of atmosphere. Friends tell me the Cars received a poor reception when they opened for Foghat last summer.

Now half the teenage population wears tee shirts which look like billboards, with giant letters proclaiming "CARS."

I saw Blender forced to leave the stage due to hand shakers who, when they opened for Rush in January, "another terrible mismatch. Only talent with a headline authority can utilize the audience with any success. Examples are Springsteen and the Kinks."

The Academy of Music

The Academy of Music, at Broad and Locust, has a sporadic schedule. The hall is well known for its perfect acoustics. A classical rock group like Renaissance may play there, as well as Tom Waits or Leon Redbone. A high class theater, the Academy even has little bars serving champagne. An easy walk from City Hall, it is just a few blocks south.

Alexanders

Alexanders, in Browns Mills, New Jersey, has a line up usually consisting of local bands or groups like King Kong or Johnny Winter. However, artists like the Brothers May be heard, and the Ramones have already made two appearances this year. Robert Gordon had been there recently. Link Wray received a Respect your feet. They got you where you are today.

There are a whole mess of bones in your feet. Fifty-two to be exact.

To take proper care of all of them, you need a good pair of shoes.

Like the one you see below. A Rockport.

That bottom is not one big hunk of crepe. It's eight separate layers. This makes the bottom softer. More flexible. Easier on your feet.

And that shoe won't rub your foot the wrong way, either. Because inside is a full leather lining that's been specially tanned to make it soft and comfy.

Slip your feet (male or female) into a pair of Rockports.

They'll follow you anywhere.

Feet have feelings, too.

Doc Watson's, across from Jefferson Hospital, is a good place to eat. The crowd is composed of Jefferson Hospital medical students, nurses and younger businesswoman. They give a wide variety of beers, foreign and domestic. The sandwiches are reasonably priced and larger than normal. The only detrimental factor to the place is that unless you have a car you have to walk a dozen blocks to get to other spots.

Doc Watson's 32nd Street

Pinball Haven This Doc Watson's is half bar, half pinball arcade. The drinks are reasonably priced with a crowd that varies. It is the kind of place where you go with people as opposed to going to meet people. The people that are there are low key and friendly.

The pinball games are good shape and there is a wide selection. There are football, basketball, shuffleboard, space invaders and a little more than a half dozen pinball machines. Bring a group to play or plan alone.

The Allman Brothers Band was far by the highlight of the summer season. The music was clean, tight progressive jams throughout their repertoire and band-wide solos allowed audience electricity not seen since Eric Clapton. Sports Outlook 1979-80

by Anthony Grillo

It seems like only yesterday when Bill Myers' baseball team posted an 11-7 record, yet, that was back in the spring. The baseball team's finest season capped off a good spring sports program in which most of eight teams finished with above 500 records.

The grass of spring will soon die and the autumn winds will begin to blow. Leaves die and blow away and are replaced by new leaves in the spring.

Athletics is the same way. Each year, new faces appear, new challenges arise. Familiar faces depart and everything is new and revitalized. Hope springs eternal. Each team hoping for that special year, each player hoping for his or her year. It's an exciting time and at Drexel that time is now.

The new season is upon us and with it of course new hopes. What does the year hold for Drexel sports and what athletes will we be watching?

Logically, lets start with the fall. The fall sports preview on the back page provides you with information about each team and their rosters.

Soccer leads the fall sports. Nineteen lettermen are returning, hoping to improve on last year's 7-7-2 record. Look for Jay High to lead the team once more. Jay's eight goals last year placed him to the position of fifth highest scorer in the conference. Keep your eye on John Hegen and Keith Ward on the attack. Two new recruits to watch are Ron Okie, a 20 goals scorer from Ryan, and Tim Shubert, a 30 goals scorer with St. James.

The women's field hockey team has lost 7 starters to co-op but will still have Larry Childs wrestlers will enter the year with only two losses. Paul Fernandez and Ed Morgan look for seniors Bill Cima and Mike Pilarski to pick up the slack.

The women's tennis team is another outstanding one. They are in the top two years. At the U of Reno in Nevada the team took and place for small colleges in swimming and diving during the AIAW National Swimming and Diving meet.

Seven All-Americans return. The girl to watch is Lisa Van Oost. She is a national record holder who won five national titles and records in '79. She set records for the 50, 100, and 200 yard backstroke in Reno and broke the leading in the 200 and 400 medley relay. Also returning Joyce Murphy, Mary Ann Forster, Regina Savin, Jill Kurtz, and Jolanta and Jack Cold.

The women's basketball team returns with 13 letter winners. The team went 11-1 last year and averaged 23 points per game. Who to watch? Obviously, Eileen Shaughnessy the EAA leading rebounder. She holds records for rebounds 283 and rebouds in one game 44 versus Chestnut Hill.

Look for the running game this year with the return of Janet Finklestein and Maggie Pisano returning Pisano in the best field goal shooter.

Looking briefly at the spring sports, the two standout teams are lacrosse and baseball. The big guns return on attack for lacrosse. Watch for the awesome threesome of Bob Parson, Ron Forster and Bob Hoover the Drexel Connection.

The lacrosse team ended with a 6-4 record. The Drexel Connection accounted for 164 points. Ron Forster with 32 goals, 26 assists.

On defense look for Mark Meschella in goal. Mark averaged 74% in saving 36 shots in four games.

The baseball team is equally impressive. Larry Childs is the man to watch. A .490 average last year, Larry had 37 singles, 9 doubles, 8 triples, 6 home runs and 24 RBIs in 88 at bats. The pitching is also strong. Mike Johnson at 29 ERA, Mike Okien 34 ERA. Bill Volmeier played a fine hitter against Temple and finished the season with 24 strikeouts in 12 innings.

Look for Maggie Pisano and Michelle Barnes on the attack on women's lacrosse. The two combined for 60 points last year. Finally Drexel Crew and what a team last year. The varsity boat won the Florida World Aquatic Games the Keno Cup Bergens Cup and placed fourth in the Dad Vall Regatta.

No doubt it's a good look at what is going to amount to a great year in Drexel Sports. Enjoy!

The Physical Education program at Drexel University has developed through student input and reflects the basic needs and desires of the urban university student. These three terms of physical education are required; one of these to be completed in the freshman year. In addition, all students will be required to demonstrate the ability to swim safely in deep water. A swimming test will be given during the fall term of freshman year and those students who cannot pass the swimming test will be placed in courses for beginner swimming.

Students with health problems who should take a modified program of activity are classified by the school physicians and recommended to an appropriate activity.

Upon completion of the required physical education courses a student may elect to take up to three additional courses. Those elective courses each carry one academic credit toward graduation.

The days of repetition isotonic exercises are long gone. Students have a choice of no less than 21 physical education courses with the accent on skills like tennis, golf, racquetball and ice skating that will carry over long after graduation. Some of the courses listed below are offered seasonally.

Archery
Badminton
Basketball
Bowling
Diving
Fencing
Golf
Ice Skating
Judo
Nordic Skiing
Physical Fitness/Slalom Skis
Skiing
Swimming

In addition to the two main intramural facilities, Dragon teams also have access to some of the East's finest athletic facilities. The cross country competes on the renowned five mile Belmont Plateau course in Philadelphia's Fairmount Park. Franklin Field, possibly the best track stadium in the country, is home for the track team while, just up the Schuylkill River, the Drexel crews stroke up and down the famous 2600 meter Olympic Course. The golfers play at Edgemont Country Club, a half hour West of Drexel in scenic Delaware County.

"Come to the library for a tour."
Sports Information Director - Robert Moore

A few weeks ago I walked into the P.E. Center and headed straight for the office of the S.I.D., that's Sports Information Director for short. I strode into a room that looked more like Hiroshima after the bomb than an office for the S.I.D. Papers here, there, pictures everywhere. Was this the right office?

Suddenly, sitting above the ruins came a strange looking fellow. Three piece suit with tie and every hair in place. Could it be, yes it was the now S.I.D. had arrived. Robert Moore meet Anthony Cirillo.

Robert Moore's neat appearance makes you wonder why he is not on the Board of Trustees; however, this is not the case.

Moore hails from Altoona Pa., 150 miles from Pittsburgh in what he terms "Middle America." Prior to coming to Drexel, Moore served as coordinator of athletics at Mount Aloysius Junior College. His duties there included making the schedule and adding to the sports program. Before that the S.I.D. worked as Director of Media Information for the National Park Service at Gettysburg National Park. His S.I.D. experience comes from his service at St. Francis' College in Pennsylvania. How did he wind up here?

"It was a position that always attracted me. A couple of years ago the position was open but at the time I had other commitments." Moore found out about the job through the paper, and friends in the coaching ranks.

"I'm coming at a good time. A lot of the sports here have to turn the corner. Basketball made the mark this year and it made it easier to sell it to the community."

The single, St. Francis grad brings a fresh new approach to the position in which he will serve. "The old idea of the S.I.D. was to disseminate tons and tons of information. According to Moore this is changing.

"The S.I.D. has to be a little more promotion minded... he has to be a little closer to the student body because the sports are for the students." Moore has two goals which he would like to accomplish. One of these is to increase student involvement and have the students serving in some capacity within the sports program. Moore would also like to increase not only attendance but excitement at the games. He uses the term "vicious enthusiasm." "Statistics are a part of it, not everything... someone else could do statistics."

At St. Francis, Moore had to and to serve a public relations purpose. "It does represent the crack the Pitt-Duquesne and the Penn State market. To do this required not just press releases but attendance at sportswriters luncheons and other promotional work. "It's definitely a promotions game." Also at St. Francis, Moore served as the assistant director of the Upward Bound program, a program for disadvantaged students from low income families. Because of the money crunch, Moore left St. Francis.

Though Moore has no concrete plans as yet, he does have many ideas of what he might do. "We are toying with the idea of a sports hotline in which people can call from anywhere in the U.S. and find out what's happening in on the road. The S.I.D. has his own ideas about publications. He wants the publications to be informative. That Drexel University wants it should be one image of what is athletics at Drexel, what is that and how it is different in benchmarks."

"I do everything up close. If you don't have any personality you can't hold this job. Moore plans to meet with all the major people at the press so as to acquaint himself with them and they in turn with Drexel sports. Seeing press stewardesses at games wouldn't bother Moore either. "A nice smile and a how are you doing in part of the game wouldn't be too apprehensive. Moore assures me that we will not have a freak show on our hands. On athletics. "It's a lot of mass support. This is what he would like to see at Drexel. I love St. Francis sports. It was a relationship that endured but not badly. They were going off in another direction and I wanted to go on to bigger and better things."

"I'm so looking forward to it because there are so many more sports. I just love it because every year is brand new," Bear Bryant once said. "You can't rally around a multi-class."

With Robert Moore disseminating that news it is a sure bet that we will be hearing Drexel's name mentioned more and more around the area. We wish Mr. Moore the best of luck.

Drexel Sports "The S.I.D. feels that home town releases are important also because they reward the athletes. "It is important to know what kind of information people want. This is a service position. We serve the University and the media." Moore will need student assistance especially when he is busy.

Drexel represent a new challenge for Moore. He paints to programs in which despite less than 580 records the teams draw

"The S.I.D. has to be a little more promotion minded... he has to be a little closer to the student body because the sports are for the students."
Fall Sports Preview

by W. Conner, A. O'Neill, Kangha, A. Cirilo

Seven intercollege teams will compete for Drexel's Fall. Let's take a look.

With 19 letterman returning from last year's '76 team, Drexel soccer is guaranteed to have a better year. Their biggest problem is offensive, with 9 goals scored in 13 games last season. Jay High, Drexel's leading scorer last year, will be returning-ning in the number five position this season. The '77 season was the highest scoring in the conference last year with 8 goals.

Drexel basketball also comes out with injuries. Their leading scorer last year, John Hegan, out with injuries for the first month of the season. Joe May and Tom Taylor will still be a good 1-2 punch, along with Mike Jack, Brian Pressey, Jack Brilly and Fred Godsent some of the defense. Drexel basketball was 1st team All American for Arlington High School.

Basket Ball and Track will continue on throughout the years. The team will be known as the Blue Jays. The player's of tomorrow are starting to develop and the teams will be ready to take on their first opponent.

The bowling team is led by the freshman recruit from the Philadelphia area, Jerry Jakubow ski. Mandala Pyle, also a key player. Karen Kanter, also a key player, Tyso freshman and the pickup player. Karen McGowan, a pickup, will be returning. Beth had two strong seasons with the Blue Jays last season. She has one of the biggest and most consistent players in the league. Kopp's team will also have two new candidates for singles titles.

Frosh Leslie Wilson was the Delaware Valley tournament champion in 1977. She was an excellent senior high school player and is ready to take on their first opponent. See you at a game real soon.

Women's Field Hockey

While Drexel's men's hockey team will entertain the fans, Drexel's women's field hockey team can show you. The team will be back this year with a few new players. They will be playing some of the top teams in the country this fall.

In the hopes of establishing a volleyball team at Drexel, see you at a game real soon. This year's team is seen as a rebuilding team because of the loss of many of its members. Kathy Wilson, Alison Bigelow and Margaret Buffo are the top returning players from last year's team. They will not be here this year.

The biggest loss to the team is Jacqueline Snyder, who graduated last year. She was the captain of the field hockey team and did all the background work in establishing a volleyball team at Drexel.
